LABOR BACKS ROOSEVELT JOB PROGRAM

That London Conference. News From Muscle Shoals. Termites Have Come. Also Niels Bohr.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE WORLD looks forward to the so-called "economic conference," to be held in London.

These home regions, between the Atlantic and Pacific, might as well know what that economic conference really is. It is a scheme, contrived with cleverness, to open the markets of the United States to workmen, manufacturers and capitalists of other nations. That is EXACTLY what it is, and it is nothing else.

OTHER NATIONS got ten billions of American dollars, which they are going to keep. They got the use of three million American soldiers, some now dead, nearly all impoverished by that trip "over there."

All the foreign nations want now is the markets of America, that their foreign workmen may supply goods that Americans buy. And that is the object of the "economic conference."

WE HAVE pushed our dollar off the gold basis and gone in for inflation, which will make dollars more plentiful, stimulating business and increasing prices of labor's products.

The question now is, what is to be done with those "more plentiful" American dollars? Will they be paid to American workmen for producing things that Americans use, or will they be paid to foreign workmen for producing goods to be imported under low tariffs or no tariffs?

TALKING ABOUT taking off our tariffs and throwing the markets of the United States open to foreign labor and foreign manufacturers, when we have TWELVE MILLION MEN OUT OF JOBS IN THE UNITED STATES, is idiocy.

If by any chance you agree with this diagnosis, you might write about it to your Congressman and your two Senators.

THANKS TO Senator Norris, of Nebraska, who seems strangely interested in the people that send him to Congress, President Roosevelt ordered an inquiry into conditions at Muscle Shoals.

You were told, you may remember, that it would be wicked to let the people use that power plant for themselves, in spite of the fact that they paid for it. It would never do for the government "to go into business for itself."

Now President Roosevelt, from his private investigators, receives charges that eminently respectable gentlemen running power plants have, in plain English, been "STEALING THE POWER OF MUSCLE SHOALS" from the government and the people.

STRANGE HOW certain things are wrong if the government does them, even using its own property is wrong, while certain other very queer things are all right if a private company does them.

When W. R. Hearst first started his Chicago American, his employes found that big, eminently respectable concerns thought it wrong to pay the city too much for water. Mr. Hearst's representatives dug up private pipes leading to private plants that were taking the city's water without any meter or payment. That shocked some "respectabilities" and was called "yellow journalism."

WOOD-DESTROYING termites, incorrectly called "ants," have made their appearance in New York, cause of worry for the big city.

Termites, usually active only in warm climates, destroy wood, boring from within, cause houses to collapse, wreck piling. They travel under ground, unseen.

The Mayor of New York, if interested, can get unlimited information about these strange little enemies by visiting one of the scientific departments of the University of California at Berkeley, across the bay from San Francisco.

There he will find learned men with regiments of termites in all stages of experimentation.

THE MAYOR will be especially interested to know that the termite itself cannot digest wood, but he has his stomach lined with other, still smaller living creatures that digest the wood for him after he chews and swallows it. They produce a by-product on which the termite lives.

Animal life is complicated, when one creature carries inside of it scores of parasites, microscopic in size, through which digestion is carried on.

To the atom Niels Bohr is what Copernicus was to the solar system.

Copernicus could tell something about the solar system, and how it worked, but never got it quite right. That was left to Galileo and others.

Niels Bohr was one of the first to investigate and report on that smallest and invisible solar system, the atom, in which ultra-invisible electrons revolve around the invisible protons trillions of times in a second, jumping out of their orbits and coming back again, supplying the heat and the light of the sun, as its atoms throw off their electrons into space.

WHEN MEN know how to handle the atom, as they may know some day, they will be able to change one substance into another, lead into gold, for instance, just as you can change an ordinary slow coach into a fast express train by putting on a faster locomotive.

HITLER AIDE YIELDS AT GENEVA

Accepts MacDonald's Arms Plan as Basis 'For Discussion'

Associated Press.

What happened today in disarmament:

GENEVA—Germany accepted the British disarmament plan as the basis of an agreement to be adopted by all the nations participating in the world disarmament conference.

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt was pleased with the reception accorded his peace message and Chancellor Hitler's disarmament speech before the German Reichstag.

PARIS—France's reply to the Hitler speech was a declaration by Premier Daladier that a strong army must be maintained.

ROME—Hermann Goering, Chancellor Hitler's right-hand man, arrived to discuss the Roosevelt message and the Hitler speech with Premier Mussolini.

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT
International News Service.

GENEVA, May 19.—Germany today formally notified the Geneva disarmament conference that she accepts the disarmament proposal of Premier MacDonald, of Great Britain, as "a basis for discussion."

Her notification was presented by Dr. Rudolph Nadolny, chief German delegate, after President Roosevelt's dramatic appeal for disarmament and a new pact of non-aggression had been laid before the conference.

RACKET FOES GET SECOND WARNING

Trade Bureau Heads 'On Spot' for War On Parasites

Four unnamed directors of the Better Business Bureau today received anonymous letters demanding their resignation from the bureau's board as the rackets tried intimidation as a means of protecting themselves from "persecution."

Business men receiving the letters—two of whom had previously received similar telephone calls—refused use of their names to protect their families from worry. All are substantial men of affairs.

According to G. H. Dennison, in charge of fraud investigations for the bureau, the letters, crudely written, said:

"If you are smart you will know this is serious.

DENNISON 'TARGET'

Other developments as racketeers resorted to deadly methods in their fight against society were:

1—The spread of liquor gangs' influence into the domain of legitimate business was blamed for threats against lives of the manager and four directors of the Better Business Bureau.

2—Detectives sought to trace through factory records, two bombs found outside the home of an Eleventh Ward politician, James Bishop, last night.

$3,000,000 MITCHELL ERROR TOLD

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The missing figure "3"—spelling a difference of $3,000,000—in an entry in the banking ledger of Mrs. Charles E. Mitchell bobbed up today at the trial of Charles E. Mitchell, former head of the National City Bank, charged with income tax evasion.

The entry, recording the alleged sale of 18,300 shares of National City Bank stock at $212 a share on December 20, 1929, from Mitchell to his wife, read a total of $879,600 when, according to the laws of multiplication, it should have totaled $3,879,600.

The error, made much of by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie, was revealed through the testimony of Edward F. Barrett, vice president of the National City Bank and former secretary to Mitchell, who had charge of the "custodian account" of Mrs. Mitchell and acted as her financial adviser.

SHAM SALE CHARGE

The importance of the testimony was related to the charge of the government that this particular transaction, involving the sale and repurchase of the stock from his wife at the price of $212 when the market price was $40, was based upon "sham and pretense" in an attempt to cheat the government. Mitchell paid no income tax for 1929, claiming a loss of $2,800,000 on this transaction.

The government further claimed that the unreality of this "sale" was shown in the fact that Mrs. Mitchell, at the time, was only worth $950,000 and would have had to put up $3,879,600 to purchase the stock.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mitchell, told International News Service that the entry was "obviously only a bookkeeping error" and that "a school boy could see that the 'three' was inadvertently left out."

Barrett, under cross-examination by Steuer, said later:

"It was probably an oversight on the part of my secretary."

SYNDICATE PROFITS

Other highlights in the testimony of Barrett included his admission that he frequently acted in Mrs. Mitchell's behalf—without her direct knowledge—in accepting suggestions from her husband that she participate in highly profitable syndicate operations.

At times, Mrs. Mitchell was "let in" on the syndicate transaction alone, at other times, both Mitchell and his wife, were in on it.

Other prominent names and firms mentioned in connection with these syndicate deals included Jesse Livermore, Kuhn, Loeb & Company, J. W. Seligman & Company, Hornblower and Weeks, the Chase Securities Company and Speyer & Company.

Medalie next began bringing out entries in the ledger of Mrs. Mitchell in an attempt to show that previous to the December 20, 1929, transaction, only small sums of cash passed to Mrs. Mitchell from her husband, but that beginning with December 19 and thereafter sizeable cash gifts were given to Mrs. Mitchell by Mitchell.

The government contends these gifts were made by Mitchell so that Mrs. Mitchell could pay the interest on a loan to him for which the stock had been left as collateral with J. P. Morgan & Co. Previous testimony has shown that the Morgan firm was unaware of the "sale" of the 18,300 shares to Mrs. Mitchell.

Her Ledger Wrong

MRS. CHARLES E. MITCHELL

Mrs. Mitchell, in whose ledger a secretary made a mistake, didn't enter $3,000,000, according to testimony today in the trial of her husband, the ex-banker, on income tax evasion charges. The error was made in an alleged purchase of stock—from her husband!

SWEATSHOPS TO GO, SAYS WAGNER

Green Willing to Back Sales Tax to Pay For Bond Issue

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—With a qualified indorsement of the sales tax method of financing, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today placed labor squarely behind the public works-industry control measure of President Roosevelt.

Testifying before the House Ways and Means Committee, Green said that with the adoption of two amendments clarifying the language dealing with what he called "yellow dog" contracts, "labor will extend to this proposed legislation its full, complete and hearty indorsement."

Asked which of the four methods proposed by Budget Director Douglas he would use to finance the $3,300,000,000 bond issue for public works, Green replied that while labor "always has been uncompromisingly opposed to the principle of the sales tax," he personally would support the sales tax if the revenue was restricted to financing the public works bill and the tax used only during the emergency.

AGAINST 'BREAKFAST' TAX

Green said that while labor would oppose the so-called breakfast tax program, it would not object to a raise in income taxes, imposition of income rates upon stock dividends, and a boost in gasoline taxes.

He took the stand just after Senator Wagner, (Dem.), of New York, predicted the measure would put four million men to work and was designed to end the sweatshops.

As hearings proceeded, it was disclosed that an oil control provision may be attached to the bill.

Green said the public works program "ought to be amended" to provide expenditure of $5,000,000,000 instead of the administration's figure of $3,300,000,000.

Wagner, asserting that a "tremendous support" was gathering behind the President's program, said so far as the effect with regard to the anti-trust laws was concerned, the bill would not abolish competition, but would lift it to a higher plane.

CONVICTED MAN ON JURY

Ansley D. Smith, convicted of embezzlement and making false entries as cashier of the Citizens Trust Company of Bellevue and whose motion for a new trial is pending in Criminal Court, concludes two weeks of jury duty in Common Pleas Court today.

Smith is on the jury list as a clerk, of 46 Francis street, West Brentwood. He is one of a panel deliberating in an accident case.

Smith was found guilty on 15 counts of embezzlement and five of making false entries on January 29, 1933. He was accused of embezzling $35,000 of the bank's funds and later losing the money in the stock market, and of making false statements to the state regarding the bank's condition.

There is nothing in the law, attorneys say, which would bar persons convicted of misdemeanors such as embezzlement from serving on juries.

Maug Pair Reward Now $10,000

A price of $10,000 was placed on the heads of John Maug and Edward Turpack, escaped Western Penitentiary convicts, by the County Commissioners today.

They authorized a reward of $5,000 for the capture of each, "dead or alive," and instructed the county detectives to send 10,000 circulars bearing descriptions throughout the country.

Chairman C. C. McGovern, who as a city detective 30 years ago, aided in the capture of the notorious Biddle brothers, described Maug and Turpack as "criminals of the most dangerous type and to be classed with Paul Paworski, leader of the Flat-head mob who shot his way out of jail.

Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd led a posse of detectives and police to an abandoned mine in Doerr Terrace, Thirty-first Ward, early today, on a tip that two men answering descriptions of the escaped gangsters had been seen in a confectionery in that district. They searched the mine, without result, and left after discharging tear-gas bombs.

JELKE 'BRUTE,' COURT HEARS

NEWPORT, R. I., May 19.—(AP.)—Hearing on Eugenia Woodward Jelke's cross petition for divorce against her husband, F. Frazier Jelke, of New York and Newport, was begun in Newport County Superior Court today before Judge Charles A. Walsh.

Testimony in Jelke's petition for absolute divorce was completed this morning.

Mrs. Emerson Morris, of Virginia, aunt of Eugenia Jelke, and sister-in-law of the late Senator Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, was the first witness in the respondent's case. Under cross-examination she said she had formed the opinion in 1929 that he was a "Prussian brute" and that she did not like him.

She testified that she saw Mrs. Jelke in Switzerland a few months after the marriage in 1930 and that Mrs. Jelke was "a pitiful wreck."

Under cross-examination yesterday, Jelke admitted he had given dinner parties in Europe in 1932, after he and his wife had separated, at which Catherine Dale Owen, former screen actress, was a guest.

Catherine Dale Owen, the former screen star mentioned in the Jelke divorce trial, was in the cast of "Hard-Boiled Angel," starring Lenore Ulric, which completed a three-day engagement at the Nixon Wednesday night.

WOODIN'S BANK PLAN REJECTED

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—A broad proposal by Secretary Woodin to insure all bank deposits with the backing of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was rejected today by a Senate banking subcommittee.

Woodin's plan, offered as a substitute for the bank deposit insurance clause of the Glass banking reform bill, and described as more liberal than those hitherto advanced, was submitted at the same time that the House Rules Committee was being told President Roosevelt would interpose no objection to consideration of the measure this session.

That statement was made by Chairman Steagall, of the House Banking Committee, co-author of the bill with Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia. The status of the bill has been undecided since the President has not included it in his emergency legislative program.

The money was made available by a $600,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Of this sum, due to better collections of monies owed during the last six weeks, the bank now has $500,000 ready for an immediate repayment to the government.

Cox Lauds Roosevelt After Talk on Relief

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Following a 15-minute talk with President Roosevelt at the White House this noon, the Rev. James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, said:

"I am more than gratified at the attitude toward our poor, which the President assumed, and am confident that under his leadership destitution and suffering will steadily decline."

Father Cox said he was astounded at the intimate knowledge of Western Pennsylvania affairs possessed by the President. The priest said:

"He told me things that were happening in Pittsburgh that I did not know myself. There is little doubt in my mind but what he is doing everything humanly possible to alleviate our economic stress."

The meeting between Father Cox and the President was arranged by Representative-elect Ellenbogen, of Pittsburgh, who accompanied him to the White House. Father Cox said:

"I am returning to Pittsburgh this afternoon greatly encouraged and refreshed after my talk with our President.

"In contrast to a former President whom I had the pleasure of meeting, President Roosevelt is delightfully democratic and inspiring. He really knows the needs of our people and in my judgment he is going to meet those needs in a truly helpful spirit.

"The President promised me that he was willing to co-operate with all classes of people looking to the betterment of conditions in the Pittsburgh industrial area, and that reports from Pittsburgh he had been receiving indicated that charitable cases had declined more than 20 per cent in the past few months."

RAIL, AIR TRAVEL GAINS BACK NEWS OF BUSINESS UPTURN

TRAINS, PLANES REPORT MORE PASSENGERS

Increases Held Sign Of Growing Activity In Industries

Railroads and air lines in the Pittsburgh district today substantiated reports of uptrends in industrial activity here and gave added weight to the 1.6 per cent employment increase for the nation in April over March, announced by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Increase in business for next July, August and September is indicated by a cross-section of current replies to questionnaires sent to railroads in the Allegheny region by the Pittsburgh office of the American Railway Association. The region includes the western half of Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and part of West Virginia.

The forecasts of better business are founded on studies of sales managers' reports, past statistics and surveys by the railroads' field staffs, according to Robert Harlan, secretary of the Allegheny regional advisory board.

AIR TRAVEL GAINS

An index of progressive activity in the transportation field is afforded today by an 84 per cent increase for April over the same month last year in passenger traffic originating in Pittsburgh over the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., according to J. W. Brennan, traffic representative here.

The number of passengers increased 54 per cent over the preceding month of March, Brennan reported, adding that the passenger increase over the entire eastern region for April was 20 per cent ahead of last year.

Coal production in Western Pennsylvania has made its first substantial rise in six years, with a 33,410-ton increase in the last 13 days, as shown in a survey made by the Charleroi Chamber of Commerce. Chamber officials attributed the improvement to changes in the coal cargo rates brought about by the revised Interstate Commerce Commission's schedule. More than 6,000 miners have been put back to work in the district, the report said.

The nation's steel industry, always affecting Pittsburgh's business life, continues on its upward path.

PLANTS TO REOPEN

Marked production gains for the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company in two different quarters was announced today. The Monessen plant will be reopened Monday, D. A. Barrett, vice president in charge of operations, said. The extent of the operations was not determined. At capacity this plant employs 1,200 men, and it was supposed several hundred would be engaged on a part-time basis.

At Martins Ferry, O., the Laughlin tin works of this concern announced it would open on a 100 per cent capacity basis next week for the first time since early in 1929. Fifteen hundred men will be employed.

May thus far has brought the heaviest production schedule for a single month in the last 34 years, the Pennsylvania Rubber Company, at Jeannette, Pa., announced today. Because of the increase in orders, the company has put its production on a 24-hour basis seven days a week, it was reported.

The Tyrone Chamber of Commerce announced that the Reliance Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, will establish a factory in that city to manufacture shirts and other wearing apparel, giving employment to 400 girls.

OHIO MAN HEADS SHOALS BOARD

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—A President's vision for model development of the sweeping Tennessee Valley soon will begin to take form.

President Roosevelt, who signed the Muscle Shoals bill late yesterday, today named Arthur Morgan president of Antioch College in Ohio, as chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority.

Morgan was in charge of flood control work on the Miami River in Ohio and has been associated with similar developments.

Hoping to get this program into early action, Mr. Roosevelt is looking for the other two men to comprise the board of the government corporation. More than 150 names are under consideration.

Meanwhile a flat denial of charges that an Alabama power company had misused government property at Muscle Shoals was made today in a telegram to President Roosevelt from Thomas W. Martin, head of the concern.

The charges were that the Alabama Power Company and the Tennessee Power Company, which leased power of the government plant at Muscle Shoals, had been using the facilities of the latter to effect prohibited interchange of surplus energy and as a result the government plant had been damaged.

RELIEF GROWTH CHECKED HERE

Budget requirements for June, totalling $1,400,000, yesterday were submitted to Harrisburg officials by the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board. The figure, the same as for May, was the first in two years that did not show an increase over previous months.

There are definite indications that the slower rate of increase in the number of needy cases is due to the gradual pickup evident among industries in this district, Director George P. Mills said.

Relief rolls have increased only at the rate of about 800 families and individuals during May, Mr. Mills said, whereas in previous months they increased at the rate of about 2,000 per week.

He predicted that the relief list in June will not grow beyond 75,000 cases.

Sewed Man's Heart While Patient Begged to Die

CHICAGO, May 19.—(AP.)—A surgeon claimed to have prolonged the life of a man against his wishes by taking three stitches to close a self-inflicted knife wound in the patient's heart.

Dr. Henry R. Kenny said he applied only a local anesthetic while he checked the flow of blood from a wound in the heart of Henry Gustafson, 47. Gustafson, he declared, kept urging him "to let it alone, as I'd rather die than bother with this."

HOME TAX SALE CURB SIGNED

HARRISBURG, May 19.—A new Pennsylvania law today provided legal channels to save the homes and farms of hundreds whose inability to pay taxes threatened them with the loss of these holdings on the auction block.

By signing the bill of Representative John C. Hermansen, Luzerne, Gov. Gifford Pinchot gave to Common Pleas courts, until 1935, the authority to stay writs of execution and tax sales of homes and farms. The courts have discretion in postponing the tax sales and may act only on application of an owner, lien holder or other person in interest.

Informed of the Governor's action, Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar said:

"It is a splendid bill. It gives the courts power to go into the equities of the case and render justice to all parties at interest."

THOMAS SCORES SWEATSHOPS

NORRISTOWN, May 19.—(AP.)—Denouncing the Legislature for its failure to enact certain social legislation, Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President last year, described Pennsylvania as "one of the worst states for the working man and woman, boy and girl, in the entire country."

Addressing a crowded auditorium last night, Thomas declared:

"Pennsylvania sweatshops are the result of a Legislature that is reactionary, and which did nothing while other states at least made a gesture toward legislating such medieval things out of existence."

MAYOR PROBES PAY CHARGE

A complaint by Congressman-elect Henry Ellenbogen that the General Contracting Company is paying low wages to employes on a city sewer project was being investigated today.

Ellenbogen in a letter to Mayor John S. Herron protested the rates being paid by the contracting company.

Herron after directing Chief Engineer C. M. Reppert to investigate said:

"It has never been the policy of the City of Pittsburgh to beat labor down to the place where it could not exist. We are paying our own laborers 45 cents an hour and were assured by the contractors that they would pay a living wage. If the charge is true, we will endeavor to correct it."

SINO-JAPANESE ARMISTICE REPORTED

Truce Calls for End To Hostilities in North China

By DIXON HOSTE
International News Service.

SHANGHAI, May 19.—A four-point understanding for cessation of Sino-Japanese hostilities in North China was reached today, International News Service learned in reliable Japanese circles.

The agreement provides for:

1. A preliminary withdrawal of Chinese troops in order to "prove sincerity."

2. No open negotiations "on account of widespread opposition by the Cantonese to negotiations."

3. Formation of a new ruling body in North China acceptable in form and substance by Japan.

4. Establishment of an actual "buffer zone" along the Great Wall of undefined limits.

The buffer zone was left undefined because of the Chinese objection to admitting a boundary exists, which would be to admit that Manchukuo exists as an independent state.

The understanding was reached at a time when Japanese and Manchukuo troops had penetrated to within a few miles of Peiping and Tientsin.

Political observers here read into the understanding a possibility that both Japan and China may have been influenced by the peace message of President Roosevelt, in which he urged all nations to undertake not to send their troops across their frontiers.

VETS TO MARCH ON CAPITOL

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—The bonus army cleaned the mud of Fort Hunt off its feet and got out the flags for a parade from the Washington Monument to the Capitol.

A committee of 50 was to present the war veterans' demands for bonus payments and unemployment relief to members of Congress.

The parade was sent for this afternoon, although no formal permit had been issued late last night. Leaders conferred with Louis Howe, one of President Roosevelt's secretaries, and it was believed there would be no difficulty in obtaining permission.

Mike Thomas, Camden, N. J., leader of the "right wing," came out today with a whole-hearted indorsement of President Roosevelt's offer to the veterans of jobs in the reforestation corps. At the same time he said he would suggest that his 200 or so followers not join in today's parade.

Italy for 80 Pct. Reduction in Debts

ROME, May 19.—(AP.)—An 80 per cent reduction in the debts of the former allied governments to the United States was suggested today in the budget report of the Ministry of Finance, which was presented in the Chamber of Deputies by Finance Minister Guido Jung.

Signor Jung returned yesterday from the United States, where he participated in President Roosevelt's economic discussions.

Bomb Hits Crowd At Tientsin Station

TIENTSIN, China, May 19.—(AP.)—A high explosive bomb, flung into the crowded East Railroad station today, partially wrecked the building and killed or injured several persons.

JOB PROGRAM AIMS AGAINST SWEATSHOPS

vored to raise the revenue needed to finance the $3,300,000,000 public works program carried in the bill.

SALES TAX FOUGHT

Just before the committee began its session, however, Representative Cullen, of New York, one of the ranking Democratic members of the committee, said he believed the committee would approve a plan raising income taxes, imposing these levies on corporate incomes, and raising the gasoline tax. Cullen said that he felt it would not be possible to get the sales tax adopted, even though he favored it.

In arguing for the bill, Wagner said the section to license industry would not be used much because the industrialists would readily enter voluntary agreements.

Wagner said the purpose of the bill was to permit industry to pay "decent wages to employes," adding:

"It is designed to do away with the sweatshops and the kind of competition that is tearing down industry," he said.

"It will have a great economic effect and a great social effect because it will permit workers to live in decency."

REVENUE STUDIED

The Ways and Means Committee fixed tomorrow noon for conclusion of hearings on the measure and planned to go directly into excutive session to decide on the revenue provisions.

Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, told the committee at its first hearings on the bill yesterday, that repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would provide a quarter of a billion dollars in revenue annually, more than enough to cover the costs of the bonds.

President Roosevelt gave the committee until next week to determine upon a tax program, saying that if it failed, he would recommend one he favored. Doughton said he was confident this would be unnecessary.

Douglas told the committee the bill was designed to stop "cut throat competition" in industry and to assure a minimum wage to workers besides providing employment.

BUILDING PROGRAM

Of the program, which, he said, actually totaled $3,400,000,000, about $2,000,000,000 was to be spent on state, municipal and other local government projects; $400,000,000 on highway construction, and $1,000,000,000 on federal buildings, naval, military, flood control, rivers and harbors and other projects.

Donald R. Richberg, of Washington, who, because of his knowledge of the anti-trust laws through his work as counsel for railway labor organizations also was called to testify. He said about 1,000,000 men would be given jobs directly for each of the $3,000,000,000.

Indirectly, he said, millions would receive jobs through stimulated industry. The suspension of the anti-trust laws to permit trade associations and industries to reach agreements on wages, working hours and other conditions, he said, would also stimulate industry.

Noted Army Organizer May Rule Industry

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt has been conferring with Hugh Johnson, Moline (Ill.) manufacturer, on the industrial control program now before Congress; but was said today at the White House as having yet to make his appointments to administer the huge setup, in event it is written into law.

These important appointments, of course, must await final congressional action.

Meanwhile, Johnson has an office in the State Department across the street from the White House, making ready for putting the extensive provisions into effect.

In an interview, he was reluctant to discuss the exact situation, but said he was asking himself whether he was competent to accept an offer of the huge assignment.

Johnson's office is near that of Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary of State and another of Mr. Roosevelt's advisors. With Lewis W. Douglas, Director of the Budget, Johnson has been working long hours of late on devising the industrial legislation which the President recommended to Congress yesterday.

Johnson is a former member of the War Industries Board and a close associate of Bernard Baruch, the New York financier. A graduate of West Point, and retired brigadier general, he helped originate the selective draft for the World War and later was chief of the Purchase and Supply Bureau of the general staff.

FOUR RAILROADS FOR FARE CUT

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP.)—Four railroads were aligned in favor of reduced passenger fares as the eastern railway presidents' conference prepared to discuss the matter at its meeting today.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, said his company favored a lower tariff.

Other roads favoring reduced fares were the Louisville and Nashville, the Chesapeake and Ohio and the New York Central. The last named line opposed rate cuts until recently, and had been supported in its stand by the Pennsylvania and the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

REBELS FACE GALLOWS IN CUBA

Two Armed Daughters Aid Hangman In Executions

HAVANA, May 19.—(AP.)—Hanging, following a drumhead courtmartial, apparently has been decided upon by Maj. Arsenio Ortez to combat rebel activity in Santa Clara Province.

Reports reaching here said the army officer, chosen this week to lead federal forces against rebels in Santa Clara and Camaguey provinces, already had executed several revolutionaries by hanging them to trees.

The major's two daughters, carrying side arms and wearing uniforms, are serving as aides to their father, according to Representative Ricardo Campos. He arrived in Havana from Santa Clara.

Cuban Revolt Growing, Rebels March on Havana

By CLIFFORD GALLOWAY
International News Service.

HAVANA, May 19.—(Via telephone to New York)—The revolt against the government of President Geraroo Machado, launched yesterday, was spreading rapidly today, though military authorities declared they would soon have the situation under control.

For the first time since the insurrection of 1931, Pinar del Rio, westernmost province of Cuba, reported revolutionists were active. In several places in Pinar del Rio rebel bands, numbering from 25 to 40 men, this morning attacked isolated outposts of the rural guards.

Rumors circulated here this morning that a large rebel force was advancing upon Havana from Pinar del Rio, but were generally disbelieved.

Insurrectionists are now active in four of Havana's six provinces—Pinar del Rio, in the extreme west; Oriente, in the extreme east; Camaguey and Santa Clara, the latter long an insurgent stronghold.

It is believed that more than a hundred lives have been lost in the last 24 hours of fighting.

Stroke Kills McCumber, Father of Food Laws

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—Nearly two-score years' service in public life was at an end today for former Senator Porter J. McCumber, of North Dakota.

The 75-year-old lawyer-statesman, remembered chiefly as father of the pure food laws and co-author of the much-debated Fordney-McCumber tariff act of 1922, died late last night from a stroke suffered three days ago. Funeral services and burial will be in Washington Saturday afternoon.

After his defeat in the 1922 primaries by Lynn J. Frazier, incumbent, McCumber, who had held his Senate seat since 1899 and had risen to the chairmanship of the powerful Finance Committee, backed Frazier in the campaign "because he bore the Republican stamp," and then returned to law practice in Wahpeton, N. D., and later in Washington.

In 1925 he was appointed by President Coolidge to the International Joint Commission on disputes between the United States and Canada over boundary waters, and served until his death.

McCumber drew wide attention for his stand on the League of Nations issue as one of the few Republicans favoring United States participation.

Dry Sees Hibben Death As 'Divine Justice'

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 19.—(INS.)—The death of Dr. John Grier Hibben, president-emeritus of Princeton University, who was killed in an automobile accident near Woodbridge, N. J., was "a penalty inflicted by the court of divine justice," Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, chairman of the Women's National Committee on Law Enforcement, declared here yesterday.

The 78-year-old Beverly (Mass.) dry leader, in Buffalo to address a meeting of the General Association of Regular Baptists, said that Dr. Hibben's death, resulting from a collision of his auto and a beer truck, was "mute evidence of divine justice." The declared:

"When I took up the paper and read that Dr. Hibben had been killed in an auto accident, I had a startled feeling that a beer truck had hit him.

"By his ardent support of the wet cause, he was one of the leaders who helped to put those trucks on the road. Then suddenly, the court of divine justice inflicted its penalty."

Mrs. Peabody also took occasion to attack Mrs. Pearl Buck, resigned Presbyterian missionary, charging that Mrs. Buck was not qualified to speak for Christian women.

FAMOUS LIFER THRILLED BY BAY RIDE

Couple Alone First Time in 12 Years, Sure of Acquittal

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—Back in the city which 17 years ago rocked from a Preparedness Day bomb explosion, which sent him to prison convicted of murder, Thomas J. Mooney awaited the start of his second trial here today.

With a suddenness that caught even his wife by surprise, the 50-year-old life term convict was whisked from San Quentin prison to the San Francisco County Jail.

The transfer was ordered by Superior Judge Louis H. Ward so that Mooney may confer with his attorneys on the trial which, unless something delays or prevents it, will start Monday on an old indictment resulting from the blast which killed 10 persons.

The gates of San Quentin swung open late yesterday, and Mooney was brought across San Francisco Bay in a special yacht. He said:

"This is just like taking a vacation. I feel fine. The boat ride is a treat."

GREETED BY WIFE

The first person to greet Mooney at the jail, aside from officials, was his wife, Mrs. Rena Mooney. She waited his arrival for two hours after learning, she said, from newspaper headlines of the surprise transfer order. They were allowed 15 minutes together, and Mrs. Mooney said for the first time in 12 years she sat beside her husband and kissed him.

Mooney expressed hope that none of his sympathizers would do anything to cause a delay. Judge Ward recently postponed a scheduled start of the trial after demonstrators shouted "we want Mooney" outside the hall of justice. Mooney said:

"I hope that something good is going to come of my trial. Judge Ward is an excellent jurist and I am glad of the privilege of appearing before him."

Mooney was to confer today with Attorney Leo Gallagher, of Los Angeles, about the trial, which has atracted world wide attention. His chief counsel, Frank P. Walsh, New York, was expected to arrive within the next few days to take charge of the case.

TRIAL PERILED

While preparations went forward for the trial, a threat by John O'Gara, former assistant district attorney, to prevent the proceeding, was pending. O'Gara had announced he would seek a state supreme court writ ordering dismissal of the indictment.

Mooney and his counsel expressed confidence the Supreme Court would refuse to interfere.

District Attorney Matthew Brady, who has publicly expressed belief Mooney is innocent, has announced the state will make no effort to present a case. In view of this, Mooney said:

"District Attorney Brady should present all evidence at his command as his solemn duty. He was elected with labor support in 1919 against Charles M. Fichert (district attorney in the original trial) on his pledge to give Billings and me a new trial."

Warren K. Billings, also convicted of the bombing, is serving a life term in Folsom Prison.

JEAN PICCARD MAHAN . . . FOLLIES, MARRIAGE, NOW FLYING

Ex-Follies Girl Turns To Career as Pilot

Intricate Autogiro Simple to Piccard Namesake

When Jean Piccard Mahan set out a few years ago to enhance the comeliness of a Ziegfeld production, they told her it couldn't be done.

When, a season or two later, she decided to leave the stage for a career of marriage, they told her it couldn't be done.

And, just a few days ago, when she decided to take up aviation and she cast her eyes on one of those complicated autogiro planes, the wise ones shook their heads again. But Jean, petite and very feminine, is showing them.

Within a week or so, according to her instructors, Bob Hart and Al Hamburger, of Bettis airport, she will make her first solo flight in the most complicated of all flying machines—the autogiro.

And Jean—what does she say about it? Just this:

"Remember, the world scoffed at Auguste Jean Piccard when he announced he would take a trip up into the stratosphere. Well, my name's not Jean Piccard for nothing. Maybe I'll not get up as high as Auguste did, but I'm going up alone and I'll tell you all about it when I get down."

DWYER DYING FROM BULLET

In Mercy Hospital today State Representative Charles T. Dwyer lay near death from what police say was a self-inflicted bullet wound in the right side of his head.

His friends said he had never recovered fully from the shock of the death of his daughter, Kathryn, 20, a month ago.

Dwyer shot himself in the kitchen of his home in the presence of his daughter, Margaret, and his wife, Mrs. Kathryn Dwyer, police said.

Dwyer drew a gun from his pocket and fired the shot before his terrified wife could prevent him, police said.

He was elected to the Legislature in 1930. Prior to that he had been in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for 24 years.

LIBRARY GETS CHURCH PAPERS

Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, has presented his library on Oliver Cromwell, believed the most complete in existence, to Carnegie Library, according to announcement of Ralph Munn, director of the library, today.

The collection includes all the histories, state documents, letters and speeches of Cromwell which Mr. Church gathered preparatory to compiling his own work, "Oliver Cromwell: A History." Many of the pamphlets, extremely rare, were obtained only after exhaustive search in England, Munn asserted.

The collection will be kept as a unit in the reference department of the library.

YOUNG SLAYER GETS 20 YEARS TO LIFE

Mother Collapses at Sentence for 'Tattle Tale' Killing

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP.)—Harry Murch, Queens schoolboy convicted of stabbing William Bender, 12, to death because he "snitched," was sentenced today to serve from 20 years to life in Sing Sing Prison.

As sentence was pronounced the Murch boy's mother screamed, "Harry is innocent," and collapsed. She was carried out of the courtroom by her husband.

BOY FOUND SLAIN

The Bender boy disappeared on January 31 and two weeks later his body was found in a closet of a vacant house.

Among the witnesses against young Murch was 10-year-old John Miller who told of going with Murch and Bender to the house and witnessing the stabbing.

Miller testified that Murch tied Bender up "to show what we're going to do with the peanut man" and then stabbed him through the heart. He said Murch was angry at Bender because the latter had told that it was Murch who had struck an old woman on the head with a wrench.

SHOWS NO CONCERN

Murch took the sentence with apparent unconcern, looking around the courtroom and then waving with a smile to his parents.

Murch was convicted of second-degree murder. Motions for a new trial were made today before sentence was imposed, but Judge Thomas Downs denied them all. The Judge said:

"There is no doubt that if this boy had been two years older, he would have been convicted of murder in the first degree."

Notice of appeal was filed.

TRUCE REACHED IN MILK WAR

MADISON, Wis., May 19.—(INS.)—An agreement ending the milk strike and attendan disorders in Eastern Wisconsin was reached today by arbitrators for the Wisconsin Co-operative Milk Pool and Gov. A. G. Schmedeman. Death threats against the Governor preceded the final peace conference.

Picketing by the thousands of farmers engaged in the strike will cease as soon as leaders of the pool assent to terms of the agreement.

Announcement of the peace agreement came after a three-hour conference between Gov. Schmedeman and leaders of the co-operative pool. Before the midnight conference the Governor and two advisers had been threatened with death in anonymous telephone calls.

National Guardsmen held more than 300 belligerent farmers as prisoners today following a "showdown" battle in the Fox River Valley between militiamen and 1,000 pickets.

NAVAL STATION FIRST IN 'DRILL'

The Naval Reserve radio station at Millvale won first honors last night in a national "enemy location drill," held to locate by radio compass a secret "enemy" station sending out coded messages. The enemy began operations at 8:30 p. m. and an hour later a "landing party" had located the station.

The Millvale station was the first station in the United States to send in its bearings of the "enemy" station at Norfolk, Va.

The purpose of the drill, the first ever tried by communication reserve, was to provide training for the operating personnel in handling of direction finders.

RIDLEY THEFTS CHARGED TO 2 AUDITORS

Aide Found Slain With Employer Linked in Plot

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP.)—An agreement to split three ways a $200,000 bequest in the questioned will of the slain Edward A. Ridley was related to police in the morning lineup today by one of two accountants, who were arrested last night charged with participating in an alleged conspiracy to systematically rob the aged and eccentric millionaire.

The bequest was made to Lee Weinstein, the secretary whose body was found alongside Ridley's in the latter's sub-cellar office last week. Police said that both of the accountants under arrest, George Goodman and Arthur J. Hoffman, have confessed that they conspired with Weinstein to rob Ridley of $210,000.

After telling of a further conspiracy by which Ridley signed a will without knowing it, Hoffman said, as compensation for witnessing the document, Weinstein was to give himself and Goodman one-fourth "of what he could get out of the will."

DICTATE FAKE WILL

Hoffman said Weinstein dictated the provisions of the will and that he had it typed. He was present, he said, when Weinstein preesnted it to Ridley to sign.

An officer asked Hoffman:

"Did Weinstein tell Mr. idley it was a will?"

"No, sir," Hoffman replied.

"It looks as if the old boy had it put over on him, is that so?"

'LYes, sir."

Hoffmann and Goodman are accused of acting in concert with Weinstein to transfer more than $200,000 from a certificate bank account of Ridley's to a checking account. Then, police charged, they formed three dummy corporations and issued checks to the corporations in alleged payment for work done on Ridley's vast real stat holdings.

CAR SALE CLUE

A bill of sale for an expensive motor car gave police the clue which led to the arrests. The paper was found in the apartment of Weinstein's widow, a woman whom the secretary married in Richmond, Va., under the name of Jacques Leroy Lee. The marriage was not disclosed until after Weinstein was slain.

Goodman and Hoffmann, who had been employed by Ridley to audit his books, denied strenuously that they knew anything about the double killing.

Two years ago another Ridley secretary, Herman Moench, was found shot to death in the subcellar, apparently with the same weapon from which seven bullets were fired into Weinstein's body. That murder, like the Weinstein-Ridley killings, has never been solved.

HUNT FIRE HERO IN SHOOTING

CHICAGO, May 19.—(AP.)—James (Big Jim) Morton, hero of the Ohio Penitentiary fire, which took the lives of 322 fellow convicts, was sought by police today to explain the shooting of his erstwhile friend, Charley Conroy, in Morton's suburban bungalow.

A physician, called to the armament-loaded house in Cicero, long the playground of gangsters, found Conroy doubled up with a bullet in his abdomen. Doctors said he would die. He refused to talk. Ownership of the bungalow was traced to Morton, twice arrested with Conroy in past years and an inhabitant of half a dozen penitentiaries.

Authorities said the bungalow appeared to have been headquarters for a gang of bombers and bank robbers.

Ring-'Round-Rosy Debs Chased From Palace

LONDON, May 19.—(AP.)—Seven American women, most of them attired—by hinted royal request—in British-made gowns, were presented to Britain's Queen at Buckingham Palace last night.

It was not yet dark when the string band of the Coldstream Guards played the national anthem while Queen Mary, on the arm of her bachelor son, the Prince of Wales, walked across the state rooms to the single golden throne.

King George was absent, having begged off because of rheumatism in one arm, which made it painful to stand in uniform and bow to hundreds of people.

The Queen sat on the throne, but the Prince of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of York, Prince George and Lord Carnegie and Lady Maude Carnegie stood grouped around her.

The police who have been most anxious this year to eliminate smoking, cocktail drinking and other practices which their majesties consider unbecoming to debutantes, while waiting for the palace doors to open, had to break up a game of Ring-Around-Rosy at the Victoria Memorial in front of the palace.

Seven or eight cars with debutantes arrived before the gates of the palace were opened and began to chase each other around the large fountain memorial while their occupants shouted and laughed hilariously.

The police asked them to drive off and the cars drove away slowly down the Mall with their cargoes of chastened girlhood.

GERMANY FOR ARMS CUT TREATY

stag speech on Wednesday, in which he announced that Germany's aim is peace. His purpose was to give effect immediately to Hitler's foreign policy.

Arthur Henderson, presiding over the disarmament conference, read the Roosevelt message to the general commission and expressed the gratitude of the conference, appealing to other nations to join the United States in this significant move for arms limitation. He said:

"Other statesmen should follow the course of Chancellor Hitler, who, after the Roosevelt message, made a friendly appeal to this conference."

Henderson particularly stressed President Roosevelt's suggestion of a non-aggression pact by which nations would agree not to invade their neighbor's territory and urged speedy action upon it.

TRIBUTE TO ROOSEVELT

Nadolny, who followed Henderson, paid a tribute to President Roosevelt, praising his message as "another great manifestation of peace which preceded ours." Its tone, he added, was most conciliatory.

The German delegat, then announced acceptance of the MacDonald plan "not only as a basis of discussion but also as a basis of a future treaty." He went on:

Capt. Anthony Eden, British Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, thanked Nadolny for accepting the MacDonald plan and expressed the appreciation of his government for Roosevelt's peace appeal. He said:

"I appreciate above all the spirit which actuates the words of the German representative."

Rene Massigli, of France, then addressed the conference, stressing "the importance of President Roosevelt's contribution to the cause of peace" and voicng his country's satisfaction over Nadolny's adherence to the British arms plan. He said:

"Germany's acceptance removes the important obstacles. It now remains for Germany to define her exact wishes."

When Massigle had finished, the commission adjourned until 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

PARIS, May 19.—(AP.)—Maintaining of a strong army was the French reply today to Chancellor Hitler, of Germany.

Premier Daladier, categorically rejecting a further cut in military expenses, declared in the Senate today that the French army is strong and must be kept strong.

The government also officially denied that such a meeting was contemplated.

ARMY UNIMPAIRED

The Premier told the Senate that war economies had been made but that they had not impaired the army's strength. He said:

"I affirm that we can have confidence in the army and I affirm that our national defense is assured."

M. Daladier said this was in accordance with the judgment of the chiefs of the army, as set forth at a recent meeting of the Superior War Council, over which he presided.

SEES 'DELUSIONS'

The disarmament conference may achieve something, the Premier said, but "for the present we would be deluding ourselves if we slackened military preparations. Only the future can tell if other peoples are ready to disarm."

In official circles it was said that Chancellor Hitler's speech before the Reichstag Wednesday had changed nothing. One person in touch with the government said that "Hitler is still Hitler, and he has merely camouflaged."

This commentator predicted that the disarmament conference soon would take an adjournment for a long period.

Japan Accepts Roosevelt Proposal 'In Principle'

TOKIO, May 19.—(AP.)—A spokesman for the foreign office said today that acceptance by Japan "in principle" of the world-wide peace appeal of President Roosevelt, but with strong reservations, likely would be sent to Washington next week.

Speaking of the President's proposal not to send troops across another nation's frontiers, the spokesman said:

"Replying to this most important and most dangerous proposal, Japan must call attention to the peculiar situation in the Far East.

"We learned at our cost the danger of signing international pledges without sufficiently clarifying what pledges the parties thereto really meant.

"Were Japan surrounded by normal states, we could give a clear-cut answer, accepting whole-heartedly. If the world recognized the Great Wall as the boundary between Manchukuo and China, we would accept unreservedly.

"However, it is Japan's impression that the appeal was framed hurriedly in order to forestall Hitler's speech May 17, and hence the President probably was unmindful of the complexities of the Oriental situation."

day blamed the stealthy encroachment of Pittsburgh racketeers on the domain of legitimate business for threats that someone will die unless the bureau ceases its attack on the underworld.

OTHERS WARNED

Threats of harm to Elton and an unnamed director of the bureau, revealed in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday, were followed in quick succession by warnings telephoned to three other business men, directors of the organization. The first four threats gave until closing hour last night for Elton to dismiss Dennison, in charge of fraud investigations for the bureau. The fifth threat was received this morning.

The warnings, Elton said, have opened his eyes to an apparent organization backing up the many rackets preying on legitimate business.

Bootleggers, beer runners and other underworld characters, their profits cut by the return of legal beer, are "muscling" into rackets that live by victimizing business men and merchants, Elton believes.

The plotters are ready to use guns and blackjacks to exercise control over legitimate merchants, Elton declared. He thinks there are evidences of preparations to organize all the petty business and charity rackets into one unit with the efficiency of modern business.

Elton believes it probable the gangsters have already gained control of the "Forty Thieves," bankruptcy ring said to function here, "if, indeed, they didn't organize the gang in the first place."

TRUCK ROBBERS LINKED

The bureau is investigating declarations that a gang hi-jacking trucks carrying merchandise on Western Pennsylvania roads is associated with the "Forty Thieves."

The three directors receiving threats refused use of their names on the ground that their families would be worried by the publicity. They are all prominent Pittsburgh business men.

Elton voiced the opinion that the bureau's investigation of the "Forty Thieves," rich plunderers of bankrupt merchants in Pittsburgh, as well as attacks on petty swindles abounding throughout the district, brought on the warnings.

AIDE THREATENED

Of this gang, Elton says:

"I think these threats can be laid at their door. Known members of the gang have been exhibiting great interest in our bureau since we first attacked their activities.

"One told Mr. Gallagher that if he dared set foot in his store, he would be ejected bodily.

"We are getting an average of two complaints a day about their activities. These complaints are dove-tailing, and we should have a net of evidence against these men before long.

"It may be a matter of months, but we'll get them.

"It is my personal opinion that big-time liquor racketeers, facing poverty as a result of the return of beer and the liberalization of the liquor laws, are extending themselves into legitimate business.

"Pittsburgh will suffer from them and pay tribute to them unless they are stamped out in short order.

"The bureau will not be intimidated by them and will proceed against them and against all racketeers with all the strength it has. We will go just as far as business men will back us—and if business is interested in its own safety, that will be to the limit."

SEEKS DYNAMITE TRACE

Meanwhile, City Detective Michael Tortorelli, of the bomb and arson squad, sought to trace the origin of dynamite used in construction of two bombs found outside the home of James Bishop, chairman of the Third District, Eleventh Ward, early last night.

The bombs, one with six sticks of dynamite and a lighted fuse, the other with two sticks and a dead fuse, wrapped in a single package, were found by Bishop's son, William Bishop, 21, in front of the house at 5609 Broad street, East Liberty.

Their discovery followed closely last Saturday's bombing of the automobile of Thomas (the Greek) Contis, East Liberty night club proprietor, three blocks away at Broad street and Highland avenue.

A few days before Contis' car was wrecked, the home of Charles Martin, Republican chairman of the Tenth Ward, was damaged, its front blown out and a number of persons endangered by the bomb that inaugurated a reign of terror in East Liberty politics and rackets.

BOMB HOSPITAL IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 19.—(INS.)—Terrorists early today bombed the emergency hospital of Dr. Mitchell S. Corbett, jolting two physicians from their beds and causing damage estimated at $500. Windows were shattered throughout the building by the bomb, which was placed in the front entrance.

Maintained principally for first-aid cases, the hospital held no patients at the time.

Police rushed a guard to Dr. Corbett's home. The physician, in 1923, had given information which led to the conviction of the bandit gang in the $3,000,000 Rondout mail robbery, and authorities were of the opinion that the bombing was a long-delayed act of vengeance.

Drs. Frank Johnstone and M. J. Armbruster, shaken from their beds by the detonation, were not injured.

Daylight Saving Repealed in Hawaii

HONOLULU, May 19.—(AP.)—Hula hula time is going back to normal.

What Are You Going To Do About It?

Why is America the land of the racketeer?

Because of the MORAL DEPRESSION into which the American people have fallen.

Racketeering oppresses us because we permit it to do so. For racketeering is more than a plague of violent lawlessness and crime. It is also an indication of wrong-minded points of view which have become all too common in America.

Of course, corrupt politics must be cleaned up.

Of course, the bootleg racket and the commercial rackets must be broken.

Of course, the laws must be respected and enforced.

What America needs is a MORAL REVIVAL—and YOU can help bring it about.

What are you going to do about it?

LINK SEEN IN 4 RACKET DEATHS

AMBRIDGE, Pa., May 19.—Three mysterious racket murders committed here in the last two years may be linked in the solution of the death of Charles Hlaris, 31, Ambridge poolroom proprietor and racketeer, shot to death here last week, county detectives believe.

Charles Vukovcan, 25, paroled from Huntingdon reformatory, is held in the Beaver County jail on a murder charge in connection with the death of Hlaris. Vukovcan was arrested at the home of Joe Pappas on a tip given by Hlaris shortly before he died.

FLYING STUDENT LEARNS LICENSE RULES

Planes and Pilots Both Need Federal Permits

WIN YOUR WINGS
Installment No. 5.

The next few days were spent in mastering the technique of straight flying and gentle turns. Bill was becoming accustomed to the air, gaining confidence in himself and his plane. At the same time he was attending ground school and there, too, he learned many things.

The first lessons covered the rules laid down by the Department of Commerce. All commercial airplanes, he learned, must be licensed each year. Licenses are issued only after a Department of Commerce inspector has examined the plane and found it to be in first-class shape.

The letters C or NC followed by a number painted on the wings and tail identify a licensed airplane. These are the only aircraft that are allowed to carry passengers for hire. Experimental models that have not been awarded licenses can be flown, but these are distinguished by the initial letter X.

Pilots, also, must be licensed by the department. Those holding a "solo" ticket cannot carry anyone with them except another pilot. Private pilots cannot fly passengers for hire.

A limited commercial pilot can carry passengers for hire, but must remain within a 10-mile radius of his home airport when so doing. A transport license allows the holder to fly anyone anywhere.

One restriction, however, covering all pilots, is that they are allowed to operate only types of aircraft with which they are familiar. For this reason approved schools are required to instruct in several types of airplanes, so that when students graduate their possible fields of employment will be considerably widened.

Maintenance and overhaul of airplanes and engines are strictly regulated by the Department of Commerce. Airplanes must be inspected at least once a week, and after each 100 hours of flying they must be given an even more thorough inspection, covering completely the engine installation, control system, propeller alignment and the fuselage, including fittings, tail skid and tail skid shock absorbers.

Approximately every 18 months the airplane must be given a complete overhaul, which necessitates taking off the covering and checking every part, replacing any showing the slightest wear.

A lesson was also devoted to air traffic rules. When flying over cities or conjested places sufficient altitude must be maintained to allow the pilot to glide to a safe landing area in case of emergency. In no case, however, must the plane be flown at less than 1,000 feet.

When flying over open country the pilot may come down to 500 feet, as in nearly all cases this is sufficient to permit him to glide to the nearest open field should he be forced to descend.

The right side traffic rule prevails as in the case of automobiles. However, all airplanes are required to be at least 300 feet apart when passing.

Would-Be Elopers Urged to Attend Divorce Court

Judge Frank P. Patterson's advice to those who contemplate runaway marriages is that they visit the divorce courts and find out where such unions frequently end.

Judge Patterson said on the bench yesterday that the last eight divorces cases he had heard were brought by persons who figured in runaway marriages. He added:

"If young couples contemplating marriage would spend a week listening to cases in divorce courts, they would realize the futility of runaway marriages."

QUIZ SUSPECT IN BOMBING

INDIANA, Pa., May 19.—(AP.)—Cambria County detectives today plan to question Vincent Deming, held in $10,000 bail after Indiana police said they found two bombs in a parked automobile.

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—(AP.)—Frank H. Caven, director of public works, has agreed that the Overbrook Farms Club, of which Frank H. Caven is trustee, may fight the Overbrook Steam Heat Company, of which Frank H. Caven is president.

President Caven has granted two reductions in rates to clients of the heating plant, but the trustees of the club think a third is in order. Trustee Caven approved their plans which include an appeal to the Public Service Commission.

Convicts Kill Guard, Handcuff Other, Flee

HATTESBURG, Miss, May 19.—(AP.)—Two convicts on their way to the state prison farm last night killed one of their guards, handcuffed the other to a tree and fled in the officers' automobile.

The dead officer was C. J. Tullus, traveling sergeant of the Mississippi Penitentiary staff. The other is Bill Hollingsworth, also of the penitentiary staff. Sheriff E. E. Hudson, of Forrest County, said the convicts were Henry Warden and John Brown.

R. F. C. Office Here Aim of Ellenbogen

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP.)—A regional office of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for Pittsburgh is being sought by Representative-elect Ellenbogen.

In a letter to corporation officials, Ellenbogen said he felt the lack of self-liquidating loans in the Pittsburgh area was "perhaps partly attributable" to the fact that no regional office had been established there.

'MAN-EATING' LION BACK TO 'SISSY' JOB

CHICAGO, May 19.—(INS.)—Brutus, a "ferocious man-eating" lion, slipped from his quarters to see the world that is a Century of Progress today.

The ensuing wild animal hunt extended through the streets of Paris, into Belgium, down past old Heidelberg and as far east as the Orient.

Brutus already is weary of the motordrome where he has been assigned to go 'round and 'round in the sidecar of a motorcycle. This is sissy work for a "man-eater," and besides he's subject to nausea.

Strong men paled at the perilous possibilities when Brutus took a run-out powder at dawn today. Six fair guards, 10 firemen and eight South Park policemen, banded together, participated in hunt.

The Parisian boulevards were deserted. Belgium offered no clue. At old Heidelberg there was no sign of Brutus. The Orient was characteristically quiet.

An hour later the searchers came upon Brutus—cowering (you wouldn't believe it) under the planking of the very motordrome he detests so much.

Then, whining, he was led back to his quarters for breakfast.

Hurled Off Cycle, Man Hits Tombstone

CHARLEROI, Pa., May 19.—Hurled against a tombstone when thrown from a motorcycle early today, C. E. Edmonds, 39, of Crescent Heights, was knocked unconscious. He was found by Corp. J. V. Hoover, of the state highway patrol.

Edmunds was riding tandem with Mike Elerick, 29, who said he had been blinded by lights of a passing car and did not know Edmonds had fallen off.

We Saved One of Our Customers $66.50 On A Pair of Shoes!

Remarkable? We thought you would think so. But when you are running a big store like ours, it's all in a day's work. At least the buyer of our Saks-Fifth Avenue Shoe Department felt that way about it. We had to apply half an hour of the most grueling reportorial third degree before he broke down and talked.

The lady in the case is a semi-invalid. For years she had been having her shoes custom-made by one of the most famous men in New York. They cost her $85 a pair. But they were bargains at $85.

Because she couldn't walk without them.

We are indebted to a mutual friend for bringing us together. She is grateful to us to the tune of a $66.50 saving on every pair of Saks-Fifth Avenue Shoes she bought from us at $18.50. And she bought six pairs. We've given her everything she formerly got for $85—custom-made hand-craftsmanship and comfort. A story in that? Do you think we could make our buyer see it? It was all in a day's work to him!

Four different new styles at this price, regularly $110. Tapestry or damask covers, and mohair. 76-inch sofa and large, comfortable chair.

Extra Trousers, 2.95

Our experience takes us back 19 years, but we recall no such super-achievement! But these are times when strange things happen. On March 6th the President closed the banks of the nation. Manufacturers lost heart. Closed banks brought closed pocketbooks. A moratorium on buying. We bought the woolens for this event in this kind of a market. We got two noted manufacturers to tailor them to the same standards as their higher-priced clothing. Smart looking plains, conservative stripes and plaids, checks, small weaves, mixtures. All variations of popular grays, tans, blue-grays, browns and fancy blues. Single and double-breasted in regulars, shorts, longs, stouts, short stouts and long stouts.

The Wool Market Is Sky-Rocketing

Leading mills are withdrawing price quotations. They are not selling wool short in the face of a bull market like this one. We couldn't come close to duplicating this purchase, made at the market's low ebb in March. So we urge you to be alert—to attend this sale—sure that by next Fall you'll congratulate yourself all over again for having made such a wise investment in May.

Don't Wear a Silk Hat When You Come to Gimbels

Not that we are in the habit of telling our friends and customers how to dress. Wear a silk hat if you want to. But you're apt to get it pretty nicely crushed.

We mean the crowds around those 1914 windows of ours. There are 14 of them, all around the store, up Sixth Avenue and all down Smithfield Street. Everybody we know says they are the most intensely interesting they have ever seen. And are our buttons popping!

What memories of 1914 they bring back. There's that grand old campaigner, "General" Coxey. There are President and Mrs. Roosevelt as they looked then. There's a big reproduction of the front page of the newspaper that announced the World War in Europe.

You'll stand and read and smile a little maybe. You'll look back to the days when you were 19 years younger and all this was news.

We want you to. It's part of plan to prove that our Anniversary prices are lower than in 1914, when the store was opened!

PINCHOT VETOES COYNE SALARY BOARD BILL

State Senator James J. Coyne's legislative attempt to limit the Allegheny County Commissioners to one vote on the county salary board has been vetoed today by Gov. Pinchot, who said "the change could not be justified."

The Governor called attention to the fact that the Commissioners have the duty of raising money to pay salaries and are responsible to the people for the tax rate. The present law, he said, wisely gives the Commissioners majority control over salaries.

CONVENTION BILL FAILS

Three other Coyne measures also met the Governor's disapproval. One authorized Pittsburgh and Allegheny County to appropriate $10,000 for a 1934 encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans.

The Governor also vetoed Coyne's bill authorizing first, second and third class cities to use public money to defray expenses of the national encampment of war veterans or veterans associations.

The third Coyne-sponsored bill to fall by the wayside related to the appointment of county treasurers as tax collectors and appointment of policemen in second-class townships.

183 DISPOSED OF

The Governor signed 22 bills and vetoed 16 and then left Harrisburg for Milford to spend the week-end. He has acted on 183 of the 711 bills passed by the Legislature, and has until June 6 to act on the other 588.

Among those given his approval yesterday were Senator Mansfield's bill allowing counties, cities, boroughs, first and second-class townships and school districts to issue bonds at 6 per cent interest to meet operating expenses. The issues are limited to 80 per cent of the amount of uncollected taxes on real estate.

GUFFEY BACKING FOR PINCHOT FORECAST

HARRISBURG, May 19.—(AP.)—Friends of Gov. Pinchot predict he will campaign for United States Senator next year with the support of Guffey Democrats.

On Capitol Hill today they read between the lines of Joseph A. Guffey's latest statement—that "there will be no alliance or coalition to support any Republican"—to find what they interpret as an "open door" to Pinchot as a "Roosevelt supporter."

Guffey, a powerful Democratic state leader, thus summarized the situation in Philadelphia:

"We will have two Democratic candidates for Senator next year. We expect there will be two vacancies—one to succeed Senator Reed and the other to succeed Senator Davis.

"The candidates will have to be Roosevelt supporters.

"There will be no alliance or coalition of any kind to indorse any Republican for Senator or Governor. I am for any man who supported Franklin Roosevelt."

To this statement Pinchot's friends today pointed with satisfaction, indicating a path for the Governor to reach the Democratic party next year if he desires.

Last year Pinchot severely criticized the administration and policies of President Hoover. In the presidential campaign he avoided any statement which would have placed him definitely in one camp, but after the election he said:

"The Republican party leaders asked for defeat and they got it."

Sweatshop Hit As 'Menace' by Pinchot's Wife

HARRISBURG, May 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, today warned that Pennsylvania must rid itself of the "sweatshop," which she charged is a menace to business as well as the children it employs.

The states First Lady, who recently "picketed" with youthful strikers in a needlecraft center, has completed a voluminous report of her personal inquiries.

The report emphasizes the importance of eliminating cheaply operated, loosely-regulated factories. She charges:

They set up unfair competition.

They operate under unsanitary conditions.

The report is to be an important factor in the state's new drive to strengthen child labor regulations and will be added to the workers' testimony given before the Governor's special investigating committee.

Recently young textile strikers told the Governor and Mrs. Pinchot they were forced to work for as low as 75 cents a week, working long hours, and young girls charged they were "fired for repudiating advances of factory bosses."

Mrs. Pinchot joins with the Governor in emphasizing that many Pennsylvania factories are properly operated, that many owners comply with the law and deal fairly with those who work for them.

But she also asserts she has found conditions which must be emilinated.

SMITH FAVORS COCHRANE FOR SHERIFF

Robert G. Cochrane, county commander of the American Legion, will have the energetic support of Common Pleas Court Judge Ralph H. Smith if the Legion chief becomes a candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff.

This understanding in independent political circles apparently sidetracks the ambitions of Chief County Investigator Leo Riordan and Supplies Director Ray Sprigle, both of whom have been considering making the race. Such support for Cochrane also would hamper Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar, who intends to seek at the polls retention of the place he now holds through appointment of Gov. Pinchot.

Gollmar, once active in the independent movement, has recently been aligned with Senator James J. Coyne, and will have the Oakland Senator's support. Smith's preference for Cochrane indicates that the Pinchot wing of the independent party is backing away from the Sheriff, as Smith now is regarded as the man in Allegheny County closest to the Governor.

Efforts to win for Cochrane solid support of the County Commissioners are being pushed. County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern and Gollmar have been political friends for years, associated in past Pinchot campaigns. There is a possibility that McGovern might pursue the course he observed in the last legislative primary, a watchful neutrality.

Commissioner C. M. Barr, himself a veteran, has not been friendly to Pinchot, but is bitterly anti-Coyne, and did not approve the appointment of Gollmar as Sheriff, a maneuver which was engineered by Coyne while McGovern was out of the state, and over the vigorous protests of Barr.

County Commissioner William D. Mansfield undoubtedly is cognizant of Smith's preference, as he has been taken closely into the Pinchot circle.

The Sheriff fight will be intertwined with the mayoralty contest in Pittsburgh, Cochrane getting support from those Legionnaires who have threatened to oppose Mayor Johns S. Herron, the Coyne mayoralty candidate, because of the appointment of Harmar Denny as safety director.

In an attempt to fix up his personal political fences, City Councilman Harry A. Little met in his home on the North Side with ward chairmen of that section last night. The only ward chairmen present were William A. Herd, of the Twenty-first; John P. O'Donnell, of the Twenty-second, and Robert Murray, of the Twenty-third, but the four remaining wards were represented by lieutenants of the missing chairmen, with the exception of the Twenty-seventh.

Samuel J. Grenet, chairman of the Twenty-seventh, is in a bitter feud with Little and Herron. His ward was represented by Assistant County Treasurer A. E. Anke and former Magistrate George England. The latter now holds an appointment in the Auditor General's office, patronage from which for Allegheny County is distributed through Coyne.

AMELIA EARHART ON AIR

Connie Mack 'Tells All' To Hill

America's Lady Lindy, Amelia Earhart Putnam, and Cornelius MacGillicuddy—far, far better known as baseball's Connie Mack—are heard over coast-to-coast networks tonight.

Mrs. Putnam's appearance, a highlight of the weekly concert featuring Jessica Dragonette and the Cavaliers with Rosario Bourdon's orchestra, on NBC-WCAE at 8, is in the nature of an anniversary celebration of her solo flight over the Atlantic on May 20, 1932. In a brief talk she discusses the part women have played in aviation.

Connie Mack, who after considerable success as player-manager of the Pittsburgh and Milwaukee baseball teams became manager of the Philadelphia Athletics in 1901 to set up a long-term record, comes to the air via CBS-WJAS at 9:30 with Edwin C. Hill in "The Inside Story." Born at Brookfield, Mass., in 1862, and starting his career on the sandlots, Mack's "inside story" covers a major part of the span of organized baseball.

Husing at Show

With Ted Husing at the microphone a descriptive account of one of the high spots of the second annual Atlantic City horse show—an exhibition by a platoon from Fort Myer, Va.—is to be broadcast over CBS-WJAS tonight at 10:30.

A 30-minute broadcast from the Credit Men's Association banquet at the Hotel Schenley, including an address by Max B. Nahm, Bowling Green, Ky., banker, is listed on WWSW at 9.

The story of how Robespierre's devotion to the French Revolution caused him to kill his sweetheart for sheltering a royalist is the First Nighter offering on KDKA at 10:30 p. m.

"Tales of the Foreign Legion" moves to 8:30 on CBS-WJAS period formerly occupied by "Bar X Days and Nights," now a Monday feature.

On WCAE at 9:30 Leo Reisman's cold cream show with Lee Wiley and William Scholtz concludes, to be replaced next week by Victor Young and an all-star supporting outfit.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The world looks good today. Yesterday someone gave an artificial limb for an unemployed globe-trotter and today we have a wheel chair for that needy person, a victim of paralysis.

* * *

And then besides that comes this letter from Mrs. Jane Sullivan, who may not be the happiest woman in the world, but she wouldn't trade places with her. Her son, William, after 15 months of darkness, is cured. He sees.

* * *

Not pleasant is the news that a man stepped out of an automobile at East Ohio street and Nash avenue, dashed to the sidewalk and picked up "Baby," an Eskimo dog, before the eyes of her astonished and unsuspecting mistress. Added to the grief over the loss of the dog, her pet of over seven years, is the fact that "Baby" will not take food from anyone except her owner and she fears that the dog will die.

If it's returned, there will be no prosecution.

* * *

A Carnegie globe-trotter spent a sleepless night thinking about the birds who nest in the trees back of her house. Two boys stealthily entered the yard, destroyed a robin's nest, hurling the eggs and nest to the ground. She was too late to stop them and received for her attempted interference a string of curses. The matter should be reported immediately to the Humane Society.

* * *

Members of the 329th Company of the C. C. C., stationed at Pine Grove Furnace, have commissioned me to notify all their friends and relatives that they are having a great time and send good wishes.

* * *

* * *

Did you know that Mrs. Alfretta Bomke's father was the famous sprinter and the all-around champion in the late 90's? She is a Crafton Globe Trotter.

Dick and Lew Waging War On Organs

By AIRCASTER

"Dear Aircaster:

"Have you heard about the battle of the organists? It seems that Richard Leibert, one of the better console masseurs, hired himself a publicity man. Favorable remarks about him crept into various publications.

"So Lew White, rival organist, hires himself another exploiter who does as well. Two nice guys, hitherto friends, are thus going into one of those clinches that remind one of the Crosby vs. Columbo embrace.

"LOOKER-ONNER."

* * *

Baron Makes Jokes

"Dear Chump:

"This is no Munchausen yarn.

"While we were playing Chicago a bunch of college youths swarmed in with albums and wanted my autograph. I gave 'em all they wanted, but one chap who had a scratch pad kept returning, and after I'd given him five signatures I halted him.

"What's the idea?" I asked. "Why do you keep coming back for more?"

"He blushed, and then said:

"'Well, you see, I wrote to Eddie Cantor for an autograph, and Cantor said he would send me one if I would trade in half a dozen of yours for it.'

"Cheerio,

"JACK PEARL."

* * *

What Price Peace?

"Dear Aircaster:

"While the echoes of Herr Hitler's conciliatory speech are still ringing, it should interest you to hear the story told by Martin Codel here in Washington.

"It's a yarn about all German radio stations having been ordered to use the same station-break—corresponding to the chimes in America.

"An orchestra plays, between announcements, a few bars of the prescribed martial air, 'Volk An's Gewehr,' which means, 'People, to Arms!'

"T. A. MAGRUDER,
"Washington, D. C."

Killer Joe

IT WAS very dark and still. On the porch of the little home in the suburbs, Killer Joe stood silently and peered through the open window. His intended victim, a square-jawed man of about 40, was sitting but a few feet from him. With a movement that was almost affectionate, Joe brought out his revolver. What a cinch this job was!

He raised the gun. Might as well do the trick at once and get it over with. The getaway was a cinch and if he hurried back to town, he might be able to dig up a poker game before catching his train to New York. He smiled as he thought of the poker game. His luck had been pretty good lately.

Inside the room the square-jawed man was talking to a woman who was obviously his wife. Totally unconscious of the fact that he was but a few seconds from death, he was trying to comfort the girl with promises of the future.

"Don't you see, dearest," he was saying, "that it's only a question of time until things improve? It wasn't my fault that I was a witness to that murder. And what can I do about it now? I must testify. It's my duty to myself and the whole town."

"I understand that, John," she replied in a thin voice. "But look what is happening to us meanwhile. What is the outcome going to be? You've lost your job because of the pressure that was brought to bear. Our little Frankie is in the hospital, almost a matter of charity. And in two months, there will be another baby.

"What are we going to do, John? What's going to become of us and our home and our babies? While you are testifying for the state who is going to testify for us?"

Outside, a frown crossed the none-too-intelligent face of Killer Joe. For an instant, he lowered his gun. What was all this? This victim was no gangster; he was just an ordinary mug. Trying to work for a living, that's what he was. Just another sap.

Such a boob was better off dead, of course, but somehow Killer Joe didn't like the look of the whole layout. The mope hadn't really done anything; he had just happened to be around when the crime was committed.

Inside, the woman had crossed to the sofa on which the man was sitting. For the first time Joe was able to see her clearly.

"Don't mind me tonight, dearest," she said softly. "I'm terribly nervous. I know you're doing exactly what you should."

Outside, Killer Joe let his arm fall again. With a sudden movement he put his gun away and stepped from the porch. He cleared a hedge nimbly and walked briskly to a car that was waiting for him a few feet away.

"Back to the office," he ordered. "I wanna see the boss."

As he was being driven back to town, Killer Joe brooded over the whole situation. He felt aggrieved. Killing was his racket and nobody had ever accused him of being particularly tender-hearted. But this, he felt, was something different.

Ever since he had first hit the racket—which was shortly after prohibition and he had deserted from the Army—Killer Joe had been one of the best men in his chosen profession. His first killing had netted him but $15, and that was his price for some time. Then he grew smarter and raised the ante to $25. Then it went to $50. And $50 is remained, depression or no depression.

In the underworld, Joe's reputation grew by leaps and bounds. His home—such as it was—was in New York. But he also had an address in Chicago and San Francisco. If he was summoned for a job in another city, his fee was the inevitable $50—plus all expenses.

When he entered the office on the night of this story, the boss welcomed him with a smile.

"Quick work, Joe," he said in congratulatory fashion. "No hitch, I suppose?"

The head man blew up.

"What's that?" he roared. "Are you goofy, or something? I bring you all the way here from New York to get rid of this bum, an' you tell me you can't do it? After me payin' fifty bucks and expenses! Are you screwy? Or are you tryin' to double-cross—"

"Shut up, boss," Joe muttered, "and keep your shirt on. When you talk to me, watch your lingo. I'm only tryin' to tell you that somethin' happened to me when I was standin' on the porch out there. Maybe it's what them college perfessers call conscience, or somethin' like that. I just couldn't do it.

"You know me. Ain't it somethin' different when I felt like I did? That guy ain't no mobster—and when I heard him talkin' and his wife talkin' and all that, it kind of made me feel funny inside."

The boss tossed Joe a look that had all the disgust in the world in it.

"Well, Joe," he said. "I suppose that's that. But what am I gonno do now? I gotta get rid of that guy."

The other man was silent for a moment. Then he spoke.

"There's only one way out, boss," he said slowly.

"On account of it bein' such a pitiful case, you'll have to pay me 100 bucks to do the job!"

GIRL UNAWARE DEATH BY POISON NEARS

DETROIT, May 19.—(INS.)—Agnes Remsik, 22, pretty Chicago girl whose life is being eaten away by slow poison she took by mistake, has no idea she is near death, Dr. E. T. Olsen, receiving hospital superintendent, said today.

That is what Miss Remsik told her sweetheart, Al Stephens, who brought her to the hospital Saturday night, five days after she had swallowed the poison tablets, mistaking them for headache pills.

She discovered they were labeled "poison" shortly aftmer she had taken them at the home of a girlfriend in Toledo, she told physicians, but when no immediate illness appeared, she assumed the deadly drug was not taking effect.

The mistake may cost her life, Dr. Olsen said, as the poison is a slow-working compound, which does not kill for 10 days after it is taken. The crisis in her case was expected tonight or tomorrow. The girl says:

"I'm just tired. I don't seem to sleep and I can't eat. But I'm very much better, I think."

Dr. Olsen said he noticed some encouraging indications of recovery within the last 24 hours. Science knows no antidote for the poison. All the physicians can do is keep up the victim's strength and let the drug take its course.

Malone Addresses Holy Name Society

James F. Malone, mayoralty candidate, was one of the speakers last night at a meeting in St. Richard's Catholic Church, Bedford avenue and Wandless street, under auspices of the Holy Name Society.

Samuel Kaiser is president of the organization. The Rev. Father Thomas Murphy, pastor of the church, and other speakers stressed the value of such societies.

QUADRUPLETS GRADUATE

HOLLIS, Okla., May 19.—(AP.)—The 17-year-old Keyes quadruplets, Mona, Roberta, Leota and Mary, will be graduated with honors from the Hollis High School tonight.

One of the sisters is valedictorian of their class and all four are able students, three being members of a national scholarship society.

Talented in vocal and instrumental music, they plan to enter college "somewhere" next fall. Then, after college, a year or two on the stage is the prospect. Mona said:

"But not longer than that. We couldn't stand it any longer than that."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Celiac Disease Is a Baffling Affliction of Infancy

"Celiac disease" is one about which the average person seldom hears. But if you have ever seen a child suffering from this affliction you appreciate the distress and real alarm it can cause.

Dr. Copeland

This is a disease of infants and is most common between the ages of nine and 18 months. Some children are more susceptible to it than others. It is found more frequently among bottle-fed babies than breast-fed infants. Celiac disease knows no class distinction. Children of the rich as well as of the poor are liable to it.

The emaciated appearance of the child terrifies and frightens the mother. The child shows definite signs of arrested growth and development. The young victim is underweight, undersized, tires easily and is unable to sit up.

In celiac disease the body is unable properly to utilize fats, starches and sugars in the diet. Little benefit is obtained from the food consumed. The body suffers from this loss of nourishment. Because of loss of weight and vitality the child becomes susceptible to other childhood diseases.

The child may progress slowly. Usually it is first brought to the attention of the parent or physician by the anemic appearance of the sufferer. But too often the real cause of the disease is overlooked. Teething or weaning is offered in explanation. Let me assure you that neither teething nor weaning can explain the marked changes found in children suffering from celiac disease.

To overcome the ill effects of this disease, it is advisable to give a diet containing little fat and fibrous material. For this reason skimmed milk or skimmed lactic acid milk is given to the infant for several days. As the child shows signs of improvement, cottage cheese, egg, scraped beef, sieved liver, gelatin, mashed vegetables and fruits can be added to the diet.

Within recent years tremendous strides have been made in the treatment of celiac disease by the use of the banana diet. Infants and young children suffering from this ailment have been greatly benefited by the feeding of bananas. Fortunately, it may be given to infants as well as older children. When given to infants the strained ripe pulp of the fruit is used with a portion of milk.

The cause of this strange disease has never been discovered. Much research work is being conducted all over the world in an effort to solve this strange childhood malady. It is probable that lack of fresh fruits and vegetables in the diet of the infant may account for the disturbance.

Bear in mind that strained vegetables and fresh stewed fruits may be included in the diet of the infant as early as the sixth month. For older children, I would encourage the eating of cereals, a daily quart of milk, fresh fruits and vegetables. During the winter months give cod liver oil. The children should be given the beneficial action of the sun.

BOY, 11, HELD IN MAINE FIRE

AUBURN, Me., May 19.—(AP.)—Police have ordered Renaud Cote, 11-year-old Auburn boy, into court today as a result of their investigation into suspected incendiarism in Monday's fire which destroyed more than $1,000,000 in property and made 1,500 persons homeless here.

The authorities withheld details of their questioning of young Cote, but Fred M. Kirlin, of New York, special investigator for the National Board of Underwriters, said the boy had confessed he set the initial blaze which grew into the disastrous conflagration.

The fire, which razed 239 buildings in a congested tenement district, came eight days after an alleged incendiary started a $2,000,000 fire in Ellsworth. Norman Moore, 25-year-old farm hand, is awaiting grand jury action in that city on an arson charge.

Doris Kenyon, Widow Of Sills, to Marry

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—(AP.)—Doris Kenyon, screen actress, concert singer and widow of Milton Sills, filed notice here yesterday of intention to wed Arthur Hopkins, real estate man, of Cazenova, N. Y., and said they would be married June 14.

She gave her age as 33. Hopkins is 43. He had filed his application previously.

Denny Visits Phila. Mayor, Police Head

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—(AP.)—Harmar D. Denny, Jr., Pittsburgh's new director of public safety, yesterday visited Mayor J. Hampton Moore and Theodore F. Wood, acting director of public safety in Philadelphia. Denny said the visit merely was for an exchange of ideas.

Harvard Meets Army Team in 'Brain Test'

WEST POINT, N. Y., May 19.—(AP.)—Having been overwhelmed in a battle of brawn last fall, Harvard University today was to pit its best mathematical brains against those of the United States Military Academy in an effort to even the score.

The Crimson mathematics team, which will engage the cadet figure tossers in a two-day contest of mental acrobatics, arrived at the academy yesterday and went into a last-minute workout at Washington Hall.

The competition will be waged in analytical geometery and calculus, the first of its kind in intercollegiate relationships.

The last time the two schools faced each other was on the football field, and Army romped off with a 46 to 0 victory.

GUARD HUSBAND IN WIFE SLAYING

LINNEUS, Mo., May 19.—(AP.)—Noble Brown, 20, a farmer's son, was held in an unannounced jail for safe-keeping today after his 19-year-old wife died of injuries which officers said he inflicted because he had learned she was an expectant mother before their marriage last February.

Vane Thurlo, Linn County prosecuting attorney, quoted the youth as confessing he choked his wife and beat her with a motor car crank last Saturday night, then pushed her out of the car.

Brown later was found tied up in the motor car near Jonesburg and told of being held up by a man who beat his wife. Later, however, he was quoted as confessing he was the assailant.

MARLENE IN MAN'S SUIT GREETS HUSBAND

CHERBOURG, May 19.—(INS.)—With her daughter dressed as a boy and herself in men's clothing, Marlene Dietrich, German film star, arrived from the United States today.

Greeted by her husband as the Europa entered Cherbourg Harbor, Miss Dietrich appeared in a gray sack suit, brown beret, a man's shirt with a soft collar, a red necktie and light tan shoes with low heels. A mannish tan sports coat was thrown aver her arm. She said:

"I shall return to Hollywood in September or October to make two films under Josef Von Sternberg."

Miss Dietrich said she was unable to understand the fuss being made over her clothes, stating they were more comfortable than feminine attire.

MEXICANS FREE TWO TEXANS

ALPINE, Tex., May 19.—(INS.)—Arthur Hannold and John Rollins, Texas cattlemen, were making their way back to the United States today after being freed by Mexican border bandits who kidnaped them on May 9.

The two big bend ranchers reached Villa Acuna, Mex., last night after being released near Ocampon. They were riding toward the Rio Grande under the protection of Villa Acuna immigration authorities.

Mexican immigration officials gained the release of the two men from Candalarios Baeza, leader of the border renegades, according to reports reaching here. The Mexican outlaws seized the two Americans when they rode south of the Rio Grande in search of stolen horses. Disarming and overpowering the two cowmen, the Mexicans spirited them far southward.

'MISSING' MAN IN HOSPITAL

The three-day search for Jack Davis, 33, of 815 Crawford street, McKeesport collector, reported missing from his home since Tuesday, ended late yesterday when he and two companions were reported by police to be in Memorial Hospital, Monongahela, as the result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Finleyville Wednesday morning.

Police said Davis disappeared shortly after he was sent out to collect several bills Tuesday morning.

Yesterday state police reported Davis, Mrs. Erma Auberle, 19, of West Elizabeth, and Marie Damsak, 19, of McKeesport, were in the hospital.

Church to Keep Windows With Beer Steins

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 19.—(AP.)—The new windows at the Open Door Baptist Church have a shady past, the Rev. Ben Cox said yesterday, but he has decided to allow them to remain.

The trouble was that the pastor did not notice the two foaming beer steins pictured on the windows when he struck a bargain with a wrecking company. However, he explained today:

"I decided it was appropriate that windows from an old saloon be used in the room where I preach to so many unfortunates."

Between 75 and 100 free meals are served daily at prayer meetings of the church.

LABOR AIMS 'BUYERS' STRIKE AT COMMERCE CHAMBER

WOMEN VOTERS BACK F. R.'S PEACE PLANS

League Indorses Arms Embargo Power For President

The Pennsylvania League of Women Voters has telegraphed President Roosevelt an appreciation of his proposals for world peace and has indorsed a resolution of Senator David A. Reed which would grant the President power to declare an embargo on arms shipments.

The resolutions were passed at the closing session of the convention of the league yesterday at Hotel Schenley.

APPEALS FOR SUPPORT

The action followed an appeal for the support of the league to Roosevelt's foreign policy made by James Oliver Murdock, assistant legal adviser of the Department of State. This support was asked for "a new international order based upon co-operation and better understanding."

Because of amendments which have so "mutilated" the permanent registration bill that it has lost much of its original meaning, the league has voted to ask Gov. Pinchot to veto it.

Foremost in the league's program of legislation were old age pensions, adequate relief, child labor reform, minimum wage laws and a slum clearance. The league has agreed to ask the Governor to specify these things in a call for a special session of the Legislature.

COMMISSION FLAYED

Pittsburgh's Civil Service Commission came in for some sharp criticism on the floor of the convention yesterday from Mrs. J. O. Miller. She said:

"Here in Pittsburgh they can't even give you copies of the examination questions. On the commission there was Dr. Frederick, from the North Side, a ward leader, and there used to be the Mayor's brother-in-law."

Mrs. David Chandler Prince, of Swarthmore, Pa., has been elected president of the Pennsylvania League. Regional directors elected yesterday included Mrs. C. Harrison Lund, of Erie; Mrs. William T. Hilles, of West Chester, Pa., and Dr. Anna C. Clark, of Scranton, Pa.

RESENTS STAND ON OLD AGE PENSIONS

Demands Trade Body Members Cite Views On Social Issues

The Pittsburgh Central Labor Union today announced a retaliatory move against the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and the State Chamber of Commerce for their opposition to social legislation sponsored by labor at the recent session of the Legislature.

A "stop buy" movement will be carried on against members of the chamber who do not make clear their position toward social legislation, including old age pensions and a minimum wage law for women and children, P. T. Fagan, president of the union, said.

CHAMBER CENSURED

The Pittsburgh Central Labor Union went on record last night unanimously condemning the Pittsburgh and state chambers for their fight against the labor program.

April's issue of the Pittsburgh chamber's News Bulletin said the Pittsburgh chamber co-operated with the state body in "achieving legislative results" and listed among the "achievements" postponement of action on the old age pension amendment and "blocking" legislation for new minimum hours and wages.

The labor union formed a committee composed of Fagan, P. J. McGrath, recording secretary, and John Hohen, financial secretary, and 11 members of the executive board, to carry on a campaign against the chamber.

FIGHTING BACK

Announcing the action, Fagan said:

"If the Chamber of Commerce is going to fight organized labor, labor is going to fight the Chamber of Commerce. We will start a stop buy movement against members of the chamber who don't make their position clear toward social legislation."

A resolution also was adopted calling upon Gov. Pinchot to summon a special session of the Legislature as soon as possible to take up the old age pension amendment, the minimum wage law and all other measures on labor's legislative program.

SCHOOL PARLEY ENDS TODAY

Necessity of the professional educator and the business executive co-operating in the conduct of school systems was stressed before the closing session of the National Association of Public School Business Officials' convention today in William Penn Hotel by Dr. George J. Ryan, president of the New York City Board of Education.

Pointing out sound economy was recognized as a public demand, Dr. Ryan compared the willingness of the public to support school growth during the boom times with the present effort to force unsound economic policies in face of tax burdens.

Factory Smoke Now Possesses Delicious Aroma

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

When you want good news, make it yourself. That's what America has been doing all month.

Can't expect much from Europe, where they are busy playing chiseling tiddly-winks with the American dollar.

Car loadings are picking up all over the works. Factories are starting to buzz and nobody is complaining about the smoke nuisance. It smells good.

That's great news. And it's homespun. Business is out of the hammock and is hitting the deck again.

The pessimists and the blue blowers are washed up. Don't forget that we had four years of it and none of our old foreign pals sent us a relief boat.

Stocks are jumping, the sun is shining and strawberries are ripe. It took us four years to learn our lesson. And in a week we'll forget what it was about.

BEER PERMITS FACE PROBE

Gov. Pinchot's purpose of keeping beer out of the hands of racketeers today seemed likely to be fulfilled in Allegheny County as the County Treasurer's office prepared to investigate persons seeking dealers' licenses.

Deputy Treasurer A. E. Anke said some of the applications will be investigated, although the law does not require inquiry before licenses are granted.

District Attorney A. T. Park will order county detectives to inquire into cases brought to his attention by the treasurer.

On the first day of filing applications yesterday, 230 persons sought permits to sell the beverage. Approximately 8,000 application blanks have been obtained in the county.

POLICE CRITIC CHANGES MIND

Meyer Talenfeld, Hill district real estate man, gave Pittsburgh policemen a big boost today in Center Avenue Police Court. He said they were not cowardly, and everybody knew that. He praised them for protecting the public and enforcing the law. After telling Magistrate James J. O'Connor of the high regard he had for the police, Talenfeld was freed of a disorderly conduct charge.

Yesterday morning he appeared at the police station seeking protection for a constable, who was about to evict one of Talenfeld's tenants in Mahon street.

Police furnish protection in eviction cases only when requested by the Sheriff, Patrolman Jerry Lemp told him. Mr. Talenfeld did not like that arrangement, it was testified, and said things derogatory to the police force. In fact, he said the police were "yellow." Whereupon Lemp cast Talenfeld into the bastile, charged with disorderly conduct.

SYNOPSIS

Telling the story of her life as a lesson to others that "a girl can't break the rules and win," Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has described her love for Stanford White, her pursuit by Harry Thaw, her weird experiences during two European tours with Thaw, and her consent to marry Thaw at the behest of his mother and his friends. Her last chapter closed with her arrival in Pittsburgh for the wedding.

By EVELYN NESBIT THAW

(Copyright.)

CHAPTER XIV.

My wedding day!

I wore a black tailored outfit with a powder-blue shirtwaist, a little white collar and black tie—a boyish type of collar of which I was particularly fond, and which later became famous at the first Thaw trial. I also wore a black hat with two small black ostrich plumes, and a black velvet tailored coat.

My faithful maid, Nellie, had accompanied me to Pittsburgh, and one of the superstitious maids in the Thaw household told her it was bad luck for "her lady" to be married in black.

Nellie insisted I must wear "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue."

Well, my shirtwaist was blue. Some of my clothes were old and some were new, and what I borrowed I forget, but I had to do it to please Nellie.

The Thaw Home

The Thaw drawing-room had upholstered gold furniture and a huge black piano. It was typically mid-Victorian. There were some really good paintings—one or two Corots, several Isabeys.

The best room in the whole house was the dining room. Its walls were paneled, and though the furniture was of no particular period, the room was cool, dark and dignified and had a beautiful crystal chandelier hanging in the center. I liked also the library, to which we always repaired after dinner for coffee, games and reading. There were some beautiful Chinese porcelains and Cloisonne vases which Mother Thaw, as I always called her, had picked up, she said, at the World's Fair in Chicago.

By this time my mother had re-married. My new stepfather was Charles J. Holman, a Pittsburgh broker who later became secretary of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, and who, until the day of his recent death, made her the best of husbands. He was popular and well-liked in Pittsburgh, level-headed, the soul of honesty and devoted to my mother. It had been love at first sight with them.

Now it was my turn.

The only persons Harry wanted present at the wedding were his own mother, his brother, Josiah, my mother and my step-father.

We drove to the Rev. Dr. McEwan's house. Dr. McEwan, before the ceremony, took me upstairs to his study and gave me a small snifter of blackberry wine.

Then we were married.

Immediately following the ceremony, Thaw did a peculiar thing. Afraid I would become friendly with my mother, he rushed me into the hallway, bundled me into my topcoat, out of the house, into a carriage and took me rapidly back to "Lyndhurst" before I could even stop to catch my breath or realize what was happening.

He was so afraid I would become friendly with my mother. Later I saw the reason for this peculiar conduct on his part. In case of any future serious quarrels, he wanted me to have no refuge, no place to go, and my mother's home would have offered such sanctuary.

When we returned to "Lyndhurst" I was introduced to several men, one of them a cousin of Thaw's, I believe. While we were standing there talking, Mother Thaw and Josiah returned. Then I was asked to sign some papers.

"They're just a matter of form," said Harry, "a mere formality."

I signed them, not knowing what they were and, to this day, I don't know what I signed I may soon find out, though, for I am about to test all my rights in the courts.

After a formal dinner, Harry and I took a train for Chicago. We were on our honeymoon!

Next morning, in Chicago, a

SHRINERS HEAR GEN. BOOTH

Stepping on the platform of the Pennsylvania Station today, Gen. Ballington Booth, commander-in-chief of the Volunteers of America, broadly smiled and told the Shriners' reception committee the journey from New York brought him close to 1,650,000 miles of traveling.

Gen. Booth was the Shrine Luncheon Club speaker in William Penn Hotel at noon. He will address tri-state workers of his organization at a public meeting tonight in North Side Carnegie Music Hall.

More than a score of local Volunteer workers greeted him at the station. The Shriners were represented by Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, Fire Chief Richard Smith, Phil Eussart and William J. Griffith.

2 BOY BURGLARS SENT TO PEN

Sentences of 15 to 30 years in the penitentiary were imposed today by Judge Samuel H. Gardner on Joseph Vargo, 18, and John Tomasco, 19, both of Rankin. They pleaded guilty to committing 38 burglaries in Rankin, Edgewood and Wilkinsburg.

While Tomasco was pointing out to police places that he said he helped rob, he attempted to kill himself by leaping in front of a truck, police said. Vargo was alleged to have attempted to escape from the Edgewood Police Station.

LEAGUE WANTS HIGHER SURTAX

The League for Social Justice has sent a telegram to the Ways and Means Committee of the House and the Finance Committee of the Senate in Washington urging that the administration's public works program be financed by increased surtaxes on incomes and increased levies on other forms of wealth.

The telegram, signed by B. J. Hovde, chairman, reads:

"The League of Social Justice urges financing administration public works by increased surtaxes on incomes, greater inheritance taxes, tax on government bonds, dividends and corporation surpluses. We are unalterably opposed to all forms of sales taxes as unjust burdens on those least able to pay."

Hotel Authorized To Ask Beer Permit

The receivers of the Webster Hall Corporation, operators of Webster Hall Hotel, are authorized in an order signed by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker to apply to the Treasury of Allegheny County for a license to sell 3.2 per cent beer and file the required $1,000 bond.

In a petition the receivers said the sale of the beverage is necessary for accommodation of guests.

Two Men Convicted In Citizenship Case

Mike George Hazidakis, restaurant proprietor, and Speros Psaros, a waiter, Greeks, of New Kensington, were convicted yesterday in Federal court after it was testified that Psaros, on an examination for naturalization, failed to disclose that he had been arrested. The indictment charged fraudulently obtaining citizenship.

Hazidakis was a witness for Psaros in the naturalization proceeding. Andy Kalumbas, a co-defendant, was acquitted. The jury recommended mercy for the two convicted men.

BABY-ROCKING APPROVAL PROTESTED

Sweet, But Bad Habit Hospital Heads Here Assert

Heads of several children's institutions disagreed today with a Johns Hopkins University professor who recently approved of mothers rocking their babies.

Dr. W. C. Beasley, of the psychology department of the Baltimore school, believes the scientific "dont's" along this line are just so much "bunk."

"Rocking babies to sleep is one of the slaveries that many mothers put themselves to. The babies get accustomed to it and cry until they are rocked. Such a habit is bad."

Miss Augusta Lamberger, director of Children's Hospital nursing school, said:

"If the mothers have nothing else to do but rock their babies, it is perfectly all right, but most mother's don't. There is also harm in too much handling."

Maj. Anna Coate, in charge of the Salvation Army Women's Home and Hospital, said:

"It is sweet of the mother to rock her baby providing she has the time. But it is just as well to put them in their bed and let them sleep without rocking."

SOME CRY, SOME DON'T . . . SOME LAUGH, SOME DON'T . . . SO SHOULD THEY BE ROCKED?

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SKY HARBOR, Tenn., May 19. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Dinner in Hollywood, breakfast in Fort Worth, lunch in Little Rock and dinner in Cincinnati and breakfast in Rooseveltville, D. C. (depression concluded). Going as a delegation of one from the American Comedians' Association, to get some aid from the Reconstruction Finance. No industry has been hit worse than the professional humor. There is too much unconscious amateur talent. We hope to pay off the R. F. C. (like the bankers and everybody else does) in laughs.

Yours, WILL.

A. C. Stevenson Charges Threats by Son-in-Law

Allen C. Stevenson, elderly treasurer and director of the Stevenson & Foster Company, testified today in the divorce case of his attractive daughter that her young husband had threatened to give him a "good licking."

The daughter, Mrs. Marguerite L. Clagett, is asking a divorce from John F. Glagett, 6409 Fifth avenue, on the ground of cruelty. They lived together for six months after the wedding at her father's home, 700 St. James street, then separated.

Mr. Stevenson told Judge Thomas M. Marshall:

"He told me I was a yellow dog and that he would give me a d——n good licking. I am 63 and I told him that would be highly creditable to him."

He also testified he could overhear his son-in-law nagging his daughter all hours of the day and night. The husband failed to buy clothing for her, the father said.

Mrs. Clagett testified her husband made life miserable by nagging. Clagett, an adjuster for a surety company, is contesting the case. They were married June 11, 1931.

TECH BOY AIDE FOR PITT BALL

Pitt's senior ball committee has gone Egyptian and Carnegie Tech.

William T. Trimble, junior student of architecture at Carnegie Tech, is sitting up nights painting Egyptian scenery for the ball to be staged in Schenley Hotel ballroom. He is being assisted by Robert Beitzel, professional artist and interior decorator, according to James Van Nostrand, of the committee having charge of arrangements.

Appointment of a Tech student to arrange decorations for the outstanding social affair of the commencement season has the students of Pitt doing a lot of commenting.

The decorations this year are to be more elaborate than ever, it is said. And with the increase of decorations, there will be no favors, other superfluities from the ball.

HOLDUP IN PARK NETS TRIO $1

The holdup of a couple in Schenley Park early today netted three bandits exactly 33⅓ cents each.

The trio stepped from an automobile, apparently a stolen one, and held up John Matier, of 4206 Bessemer street, and a woman companion, whose name police did not learn. Forcing the couple from a machine, the thugs robbed Matier of a dollar bill, according to Oakland police.

The bandit car was abandoned in Greenfield avenue several hours later.

FAT MEN AND WOMEN

Should Read This

Every Man and Woman, who is overweight and wants to reduce safely without using dangerous drugs, harsh laxatives, strenuous exercises, or severe diets should use the new reducing food called: SYL-VETTE. This new system of reducing is simply a food sufficiently rich in non-fattening proteins, carbohydrates and vitamines to furnish enough nourishment to keep you from feeling hungry or weak. Just one teaspoonful of Syl-ette takes the place of breakfast or lunch and has absolutely proven the fact that by reducing the amount of food you eat each day, excess fat will soon vanish, because food and food alone creates fat. Syl-Vette is the one absolutely safe way to reduce and is guaranteed not to contain any thyroid or other harmful drugs or ingredients. 30-day treatment only $1. Ask any of these Department Stores about Syl-Vette. JOSEPH HORNE CO., ROSENBAUM CO., PEGGS & BUHL, GIMBELS or McCREERY'S.

WILSON'S FATE RECALLED BY F. R.'S PLEA

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Famous Author and Diplomat and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The extent that the Roosevelt peace plea has already tempered Germany's demand to arm and other powers' threats is well realized in Washington.

This influence of a strong, courageous and unprejudiced voice with the backing of the people of a strong, courageous and unprejudiced nation has not been equalled as a stabilizing force in the world since Wilson's voice penetrated the consciousness and the conscience of the whole world.

The shrewdest heads among those who surround the President required only 24 hours to realize that the reason for the power of Roosevelt's plea is found not only in the plea itself but in the fact that it came from a source detached from, separated from, isolated from, divorced from, apart from, absent from all the entanglements, intrigues, selfish interests, pulling and hauling of European politics.

Recall Wilson Power

Today only the thoughtless in the administration circles fail to recall the power of Wilson while he kept himself and his country in the clear high atmosphere where judgment was unshackled, where vision could be clean and far above the dust of conflict.

Not only did Wilson's power lie in his vision, unclouded by excursions into the arena but was sustained by the very fact that he was not committed beforehand to anything and that his opinion could be weighed in every corner of the earth as being from a source untouched and uncorrupted because it was uninvolved in the deals, alliances, understandings and petty intricacies of the European jig saw puzzle.

Wilson achieved by force of circumstance and his own wisdom and restraint the most exalted place ever accorded to a man in all the world's history.

He achieved it, so Washington is today recalling, only because a perplexed world needed a free mind in a seat of mercy, humanity and justice.

Loses His Strength

The very instant he stepped down from that seat to which the world had elevated him his power vanished into thin air. His voice became a whisper. He was no more heard, even by his own people, than the smallest of the squabbling diplomats.

He had exchanged the place of the greatest wisdom the world has ever known to yield to the temptations of the greatest and most tragic of all the world's follies.

He had ceased to be ready for service as a judge—for he had become only another of the parties in a fracas of plaintiffs and defendants represented by little attorneys.

He had jumped from unclouded vision into the dust of an old blood-strewn arena. Gladiators more versed than he in sordiness, trampled him to bits.

There are no greater tidings from Washington today than the fact that the reverberations of the Roosevelt plea have raised the spirit of Wilson from his resting place to touch the shoulder of every man who loves Roosevelt and serves Roosevelt. It is the voice in the air.

Capital Thoughtful

This is not the voice of a Washington warning us against entanglements; it is the voice of a Wilson beseeching us against a second tragedy in tactics which overnight can destroy idols, bring wardens of justice into the mire and sink our influence in the quicksand of a world's distress.

Washington at the moment is in thoughtful mood. For it sees that our power abroad can be used only for two purposes—for America or for the good of the whole world.

To throw that power away by throwing freedom of judgment and action away in advance is to draw us into disadvantage—a minority member of some agreement, pact or paper institution where the majority may pull us hither and thither or dictate by the intrigue of members sacrifices of our men, our money and our morals.

Still worse for the good of mankind will it be to step again from the vision in the clear air to take part in battles-royal where we will again lose the last vestige of that power which Roosevelt's message has proved today can be made to traverse all the continents and all the seas.

ASK NEW TRIAL FOR ZIEFEL

Motions for a new trial and arrest of judgment were filed today for William H. Ziefel, former chief clerk to the County Commissioners, and Edward Allen, former superintendent of the County Bureau of Motor Vehicles, who were adjudged guilty on charges of conspiracy to defraud the county.

Ziefel, Allen and Roy F. Walters were alleged to have conspired to divert gasoline from the county supplies to their own use. Ziefel and Allen were adjudged guilty and Walters not guilty by Judge Sylvester Snee last Saturday after the defense demurred to the evidence and the case was taken from the jury and given to the court for decision.

The defense motions averred the court had erred in judging Ziefel and Allen guilty.

SHOE RETAILERS HEAR HERRON

Value of organization was stressed by Mayor John S. Herron in a talk before the Pittsburgh Shoe Retailers' Association last night at a meeting in the C. A. Verner Company Building.

Deskey spoke last night, and will speak again tonight at Carnegie Tech on interior architecture.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

The composers of the delightful and comforting "Stormy Weather" would like it better hearing the grandest of the arrangements on it . . . The H. Stern crew at the Biltmore makes it a lovelier thing—the bass rhythm falling on the ears like a mother's caress . . . Like that ditty in Marion Davies' forthcoming flicker "Peg o' My Heart"—called "Sweetheart Darlin' "—a swingy-thingy . . . Wonder why so many of the local yokels pronounce the name of the nicest of the Merrick Roadhouses "The Pav-ill-yun" when it's the "Pav-il-on?" . . . This is, indeed, an amusing observation to those of us who cover the theater front . . . Maxwell Anderson's play, "Both Your Houses," which didn't run 12 weeks—will be classed as a failure by Variety's boxscore keeper, who tags you with a bum guess if you like a show that doesn't run 3 months . . . Yet "Both Your Houses," which will be listed as a failure—wins the year's orchid—The Pulitzer Prize . . . I like to be where Jack Dempsey is . . . When he is introduced to the crowd, I mean . . . Because the deafening ovation that greets his name must give the celebrities who celeb all over the place a rough idea of their own unimportance . . . The only trouble, though, with being an ex-champ is that you get paid off in applause.

Well, it was just as they warned us . . . That "Walda," making her maiden efforts at the racetracks, would not be "let out" . . . Meaning, I suspect, that she wouldn't be allowed to win right on her first time in big league company . . . But I wagered all of $4 that she would "show"—out of respect to the one after whom she was christened—and she came in 5th . . . And Fator up, too . . . The nag called "Ben Bernie" never came in better than 11th—so let him match that! . . . Interesting character that Sam Rosoff, who builds subways and buys garbage concessions . . . Another of his steeds, "Billy M," never impressed at the tracks . . . On Saturday, though, Rosoff ankled up to Mr. Kallick—if that's the way he spells it—and asked the price on "Billy M"—an also ranner . . . To Rosoff the bookie quoted him 40-20-10 and Sam bet him 200 across the board . . . Then the "tip" spread like a bad notice—and all the lads got down on "Billy M"—which romped in, paying plenty smackers for one—and Mr. Kallick—an allegedly shrewd bookmaker is said to have lost $70,000 on that one race—which is more than bookies lose in a year . . . $4, however, will be my limit when "Walda" runs . . . For I agree with the wisey who said that the only way to beat the horses is to whip 'em.

Haven't read "Gabriel Over the White House" yet—but they say it's a grand book . . . And that Roosevelt has followed most of the suggestions in it—except the bonus angle . . . I know this . . . That Congress, which enjoys having its own way, is nibbling at its nails because it knows that Roosevelt has the People in back of him—a difficult to beat combination . . . Makes me think of Clyde Beatty in that huge cage of beasts—the way the President handles them . . . Hope they never bite him, however . . . It would end him . . . They all have the rabies . . . The Forestry Brigade, they are saying, has been sort of a flop . . . Seems that too many of the lads who are unemployed do not go for the idea of leaving behind the bright bulbs and good times for $1 a day and food and shelter . . . I was kidding when I wrote that there is an infallible system for beating the dice, but some subscribers would appreciate knowing it . . . Well, the best answer I ever heard or read on how to beat the throw of the dice—is to throw them away.

Everywhere you go nowanights you meet people who want to see Walker mayor of the town again . . . The cops at his former home in the Village had a time of it the other night with several men who tacked up "Walker for Mayor" placards all over the house front . . . The gendarmes ripped them down, however . . . Jimmy would like knowing about it, anyway . . . It's fun being a target . . . Watching the pot-shotters exert themselves hurling pebbles—and titter as they miss—without having to duck 'em . . . It must leave them all a little weary and disgusted after they discover how much time they've wasted barking—and finding out that what they should have been doing instead, was taking target practice . . . Mediocrity is never discussed.

The only thing I'm going to miss of importance in the play temples will be Mr. White's new "Scandals" . . . His First-Nights have a way about them that I go for . . . Can't remember ever colyumning this one—about the incident in Los Angeles—when June and I went to see a play . . . And a lad approached me . . . And would I give him my autograph? . . . And in rushing to find her I hoped that his children would have ingrown hairs or something, so annoyed was I with the clunk . . . The next day one of the Los Angeles paragraphers, with whom I swapped lies over the luncheon tables, told me he had a phone call from a reader . . . Who called because he had a complaint to make . . . "What's the matter?" asked Harrison Carroll, whose stuff is syndicated from there . . . "Well," replied the aggrieved autografter who got in my hair the night before, "I just wanted to tell you that this Walter Winchell, of New York, gave me his autograph last night, and he was indifferent about it!" . . . Of all things! . . . And when Mr. Carroll, of the Los Angeles Herald-Express, with make-believe scowls, demanded an explanation from me about my misconduct, the urge gripped me to autograph his nose with my fist—for even teasing me about it, I didn't, however. Because in the nick of time I was reminded of Chauncey Depew's observation . . . Depew, it was, who always contended that fame depended upon being civil to interviewers.

Novarro Gets Novel for Movie

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, May 19.—The endless wanderings of Director W. S. Van Dyke are soon to begin again.

With some final work still to be done on "Eskimo" Van went into a huddle yesterday with Hunt Stromberg, associate producer, and came away with the assignment to direct Ramon Novarro in the long-postponed Oliver La Farge novel, "Laughing Boy."

Mr. Novarro

The story, which Universal sold after months of casting difficulties, will be Novarro's first under his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract. He'll arrive here in June and will begin work almost immediately.

While the film calls for location work, it will be the shortest of Director Van Dyke's many journeys. To the man who went to the South Seas to shoot "White Shadows," to Africa to film "Trader Horn," and to Alaska to photograph "Eskimo," a trip to the Navajo country in New Mexico and Arizona will seem like working in his own back yard.

Both he and Stromberg are enthusiastic, however, about the screen possibilities of La Farge's prize novel. They have begun a search for an actress to play the Indian heroine.

* * *

One of the better stories of the week concerns Anna Sten, Russian charmer, who has now mastered English except for an occasional nuance.

A short while ago, the actress attended a Hollywood party where they started to organize a card game.

"Do you play bridge, Miss Sten?" inquired the hostess.

* * *

That $3,500 statue of La Dietrich, sans skirt, or even the famous trousers, will be put on observation for the 20,000,000 expected visitors at the Chicago World's Fair. The object d'art, which required three weeks of posing by the German star, and six weeks of work by the sculptor, Scarpitta, will leave soon for its eastern exhibition. Millions who'll miss it there will see a replica in the talkie, "Songs of Songs."

* * *

It is George Fitzmaurice, director of so many colorful screen stories, whom Samuel Goldwyn chooses to superintend the Hollywood debut of Anna Sten. An enthusiast over the old Paris, Fitz is lending many volumes from his personal library to aid in research for "Nana." It will be as Zola's amorous heroine that the Russian actress first appears before an American camera.

Did you hear Diana Wynyard's nickname for G. B. Shaw? Meeting the Irish wit on the Empress of Britain, she tabbed him "Rasputin." And she stuck to it all the way across . . . A rather excited Helen Hayes talked to Charles MacArthur in Berlin, and reports he'll be leaving for home in a couple of weeks. Presumably the Thalbergs will be returning about the same time . . . It's a long-term writer's contract at Warners for Bill Rankin. He did the script on "The Kingfish" . . . Warren William's favorite spot to study a part is Deer Lodge Tavern at Lake Arrowhead . . . Bob Armstrong was scheduled to open a fight club at Ontario. He leaves the management to Jack Perry, one-time welterweight, who quit fighting to go with Bob and James Gleason in "Is Zat So?" and, incidentally, Clark Gable is brushing up on the manly art under Perry's tutelage.

Did you know: That Gary Cooper, native of Montana, attended grammar school in England?

James Cagney In Warner

By MILDRED FILLMORE

James Cagney, is still the hard-boiled boy and lady-slapper in "Picture Snatcher," film in the Warner, but the picture itself isn't as dynamic as some that Jimmie has done, despite the fact that he does get mixed up in a machine gun battle between a gangster and the police.

It's all the fault of the story, which puts him in bad light with the audience right at the beginning by having him steal a picture from a house of tragedy and sorrow for the use of a sensational newspaper. Even though he regrets it, and you know he is an ex-crook trying to go straight, spectator sympathy is alienated. And his next "scoop" has the same effect, inasmuch as it involves a breach of honor, so when the good break finally comes his way, through an act of treachery to a former pal, it is felt that it is more than he deserves.

In this one Cagney, after a prison term, wants to become a reporter, but his lack of education naturally is against him. However, is applying for a job he learns that a picture is desired. To get it will require facing a shotgun. He gets the picture and a job as a photographer and stays with it until he graduates to a newspaper of higher standing.

Cagney does his work with the customary vigor that marks all his work. Alice White, a female reporter, is she who gets slapped. This a couple of times when she tries to "make" our Jimmy, who seems to be a clean boy at heart. That same heart is all for Patricia Ellis, daughter of a police officer, who gets demoted because of Cagney and later is restored through the same agency. Ralph Bellamy also has a prominent role as a managing editor.

Comedy Film In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

A Pleasant comedy with a rather far-fetched title, "A Lady's Profession," possibly intended to be suggestive of something notorious, is the amusing photoplay feature in the Fulton. The lady of the title in the picture is a real lady, as distinguished from the ordinary woman who is just as refined, for "lady" in this instance means a member of the British nobility. And she has no profession, although she does become involved in the American speak-easy business—unintentionally.

The part is the excellent characterization of Alison Skipworth, veteran stage actress, who dominates this picture with a high comedy portrayal of the sort of woman she is supposed to be, one of a family that "has snubbed the Mac Dougals for a hundred years." Miss Alison makes the lady a cheerful and delightfully human snob, who combines patrician airs with a paractical eye to the main chance.

When the family goes broke she follows her brother who has come to America, where "they don't know there is a depression," in order to retrieve his fortune. She finds that he has bought a speakeasy that has no business, and she re-establishes it as a non-alcoholic high class night club. The only trouble is that what she supposes to be ginger ale really is champagne.

Of course there is a romance one between her brother's daughter, played by Sari Maritza, and the son of an American millionnaire, portrayed by Kent Taylor. It is sufficient to say they elope. Roland Young also earns his share of the laughs as the vapid brother of our funny lady.

Boss

Patricia Ellis is a young business woman whom Joe E. Brown calls "boss" in "Elmer the Great," and also his sweetie. The picture opens tomorrow in the Enright.

Drama for Fox Chapel During Summer

Throughout the summer, opening June 26, there will be a season of drama in the theater of Shady Side Academy, Fox Chapel. The movement has an advisory committee, including Elmer Kenyon, Chester Wallace, James Macfarland, Mrs. Evan Jones, Ray E. Hurd and George D. Lobingier, the active management to be in the hands of M. E. Fierst, who has officiated as managing director of the Y Co-operative Playhouse. It is hoped a permanent civic theater for Pittsburgh will be the outgrowth of the movement, which is on a subscription basis, with seats also available to the public through the box office. "The Second Man," "Springtime for Henry" and "Children of Darkness" are among the plays being considered for presentation. The company will be part professional, part amateur.

Music Heard In Cinema

By MARGARET RUSSELL

A rare treat awaits Pittsburgh music lovers at the Cinema, Liberty avenue, this week. "Be Mine Tonight" is a delightful visual and auditory record of a magnificent voice and a charming personality.

The golden voice of Jan Kiepura, Polish tenor star of the Vienna Opera Company, will ring in your ears for many a day. As Enrico Ferrero, an Italian tenor, he escapes from the domineering dictatorship of a relentless woman manager, and hies himself away to picturesque Switzerland for a well-earned rest far away from the tiresome plaudits of the world.

Entrained with a notorious crook who becomes his self-appointed secretary Ferraro avoids a tiresome village welcome by an exchange of identities. There is a girl, the Mayor's daughter, played by Magda Schneider, 19-year-old German star, whose affections are undecided between the "fame" of the bogus tenor and the charm of the real Ferraro.

The local arm of the law reaches out for the imposter and Ferraro has to sing his way out of jail. Kiepura's lilting tenor voice runs through the picture like a bright flame. Besides several hit numbers, he sings in an entire act from "La Boheme," a scene from "Rigoletto" and the duet from "La Traviata."

Miss Emily Taylor Irwin Becomes Bride in Church

At a pretty ceremony last night at 7:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg, Miss Emily Taylor Irwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker Irwin, of Wilkinsburg, became the bride of Dick Miller Reeser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis A. Reeser, of New Kensington.

Officiating was the Rev. George Taylor.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white net, having ruffles over the shoulders, and a profusion of ruffles in the skirt extending into a full train. Her veil of tulle cascaded from a Juliet cap of tulle caught with orange blossoms and embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a prayer book having a marker of lilies of the valley.

Miss Margaret Morse, of Mercer, the maid of honor, and Miss Patricia Irwin, of Chicago, the junior bridesmaid, wore star blue gowns, the maid of honor's fashioned of net, having puffed and ruffled sleeves, a brief train and a suggestion of the bustle effect. They carried pink delphinium, roses and pink daisies.

The bridesmaids, who were Mrs. George Johnston, Mrs. Harold Evans, Miss Winifred McKnight and Miss Charlotte Sohn, all wore similar gowns of pale rose rough crepe, having large puffed sleeves of net and ruffles of net from the knees to the hemline of their sweeping skirts. They all carried blue delphinium and other blue summer flowers.

The bride's mother wore hyacinth blue angelskin lace and a corsage of gardenias, and the mother of the bridegroom chose white with gardenias. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Margaret E. Taylor, also attended the ceremony, and wore black satin with a corsage of orchids.

The reception and wedding dinner were in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. The bridal party received before a screen of palms and ferns. The bridal table was decorated in white, with bowls of white flowers and white tapers in crystal holders alternating the length of the table.

Mr. Reeser and his bride left by motor for the South. When they return they will be at home in New Kensington.

Harmarville Home Open House Set For June 7

Among the many attractive June events everyone is preparing for now is the annual open house day at Harmarville Convalescent Home for Women and Children at Harmarville, and this year is the organization's twentieth anniversary.

The Federation of Girls' School Societies, sponsor of the home, where women with their babies may convalesce after serious illnesses, each year has a tea when anyone interested in the home may come to visit.

Wednesday, June 7, is the date of the open house this year, with tea from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. George Singer Ebbert, president of the Federation, will be in charge.

KING COTTON STILL REIGNING FAVORITE FOR DAY OR EVENING

COTTON HAS gone grand! Not only does it sweep everything before it all day long; it's a headliner at night. It started modestly as the basis of simple country evening dresses, the sort you wore on a boat or at parties which ended with dashing around the countryside, or for treasure hunts. Now it's the bright particular star of the grandest balls.

* * *

SOUTHAMPTON AND Newport are simply strewn with cottons after the sun goes down. Lots of the evening dresses tub; but even when they don't, they have a starchy freshness all their own that it's hard to beat.

* * *

ORGANDIE, FOR instance. The dress on the left is organdie. Organdie has been jewelled and sequinned and generally bedecked, but it's really most successful when it keeps its own charmingly naive character. Here it's kept very simple, embroidered all over and cut out in a sort of Broderie Anglaise effect. White on white. Very lacey and sheer looking. There are bands of the plain organdie edging the little cape, making the tailored belt and hemming the skirt.

* * *

ON THE right is quite another variety of cotton, proving how wide the range of choice can be. It's really linen, which is generally classed with the cotton family, a little heavier even than the handkerchief sort, but very fine. The plaid is one of those indefinite, shading affairs, all in shades of green. The deepest of the tones is repeated in a velvet ribbon which runs around the edge of the low decollete and breaks into a bow at the base of it. The ruffles over the shoulders are far from girlish. They're sophisticated and carry the wide shoulder-feeling into the evening with marked success.

SPONSOR MOVIE FOR FATHER COX

On his way to Washington last night Father Cox stopped off at Mt. Carmel, Pa., to make an address to the local organization of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of which he is Chaplain for the Department of Pennsylvania.

Hundreds are already planning to attend the big Sunday movie benefit that Manager W. B. Davis is sponsoring for Father Cox at the Triangle Theater, East Liberty, Sunday. It's going to be a big show for a worthy cause and, as usual, donations of food will be the only "tickets" of admission.

And, incidentally every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberall cash commission.

ACTRESS LOSES BEERY SUIT

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—(AP.)—After Wallace Beery, movie actor, testified he planned to spend thousands of dollars squaring debts of his friend, John Allen Rascoe, and to set up a trust fund for Rascoe's 8-year-old daughter, Superior Judge Charles Crail yesterday dismissed an accounting suit brought by Barbara Bedford, actress and widow of Rascoe.

Beery's testimony quelled the controversy over $10,000 insurance left by Rascoe and Miss Bedford and the broadly grinning actor shook hands.

Beery said he had loaned Rascoe, a close friend for 24 years, sums totaling $8,500 before the latter's death last March, some three years after being divorced from Miss Bedford. Rascoe left the insurance to cover his note to Beery. The balance was to be used for education of the child, Barbara Edith.

ATLANTIC FLIER VICTIM OF GAS

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 19.—(AP.)—Bennett Griffin, trans-Atlantic flier, and two companions on a flight from Kansas City were recovering today from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Griffin and Jack Story, vice president of the American Air Race Association, still were in serious condition, while Herschel Cathcard, Kansas City automobile dealer, was slightly ill.

A displaced exhaust pipe lodged in front of the fresh air intake to the pilot's cockpit, Story said, was responsible.

Daniels, 71, Visits Mexican Farm School

MEXICO CITY, May 19.—(AP.)—Ambassador Josephus Daniels yesterday celebrated his seventy-first birthday, busy with work of his post.

As guest of Secretary of Agriculture Francisco Elias, the Ambassador motored 40 miles to Chapingo to visit the Government Agriculture College, attended by 400 Mexican youths.

DuBois Man Freed In Lawyer's Shooting

CLEARFIELD, Pa., May 19.—(AP.)—Joe Butera, 32, of DuBois, was acquitted yesterday of charges of wounding L. D. McCall, an attorney.

Accused of shooting McCall from ambush, Butera contended he was in DuBois at the time. McCall testified he recognized Butera as his assailant.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

HOT CHICKEN TIMBALE WITH PEAS—12 tablespoons butter, 1½ cups fine bread crumbs (rubbed through sieve), 1 quart milk, 6 cups chopped cooked chicken, 3 tablespoons chopped parsley, 12 eggs, slightly beaten, salt and pepper to taste, Bechamel sauce.

Melt butter, add bread crumbs and milk. Cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Add chicken, parsley and eggs. Season. Turn into three well-buttered ring molds. Set molds into pans of hot water and bake in moderate oven until firm to touch. Remove from molds to hot serving dishes and fill centers with hot seasoned peas. Pour around Bechamel, over which sprinkle chopped parsley and a sprinkling of paprika.

Bechamel Sauce — 1½ cups chicken stock, 1 slice onion, 1 slice carrot, bit of bay leaf, sprig of parsley, 6 peppercorns, ¼ cup butter, ¼ cup flour, 1 cup scalded milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Cook stock 20 minutes with onion, carrot, bay leaf, parsley and peppercorns, then strain. There should be one cup. Melt butter, add flour and gradually hot stock and milk. Season with salt and pepper.

* * *

GLAZED CARROTS AND PEAS.—Scrape 3 medium-sized carrots, cut in ¼-inch slices or strips; ½ cup butter, ½ cup sugar, 1 No. 2 can peas.

Cook carrots in boiling salted water for 15 minutes. Drain. Put in saucepan with butter and sugar and cook slowly until soft and glazed. Heat a can of peas, drain, turn into a hot serving dish, surround with the carrots, pouring glazing liquid left from carrots over the peas. Serves six.

* * *

Have liver cut in rather thick slices, and cut these across so as to form portions about 1½ inches square. Cut bacon in squares also. Run a wooden or metal skewer through the center of alternate slices of liver and bacon, allowing three slices of liver and four of bacon for each skewer. Broil either under gas flame or over a clear, hot fire for six or seven minutes, turning twice during cooling. Arrange on long strips of toast (still on the skewers)—and pour over each service a spoonful of the butter, parsley and onion juice, which have been heated together.

* * *

NEW HAM DISH — 1½ cups diced cooked ham, 1½ cups cream sauce, 1 cup mushrooms, ½ cup green peppers, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard.

Saute the mushrooms with green peppers and ham. Then the beaten egg yolks and seasonings. Make a rich pie crust and line a baking dish with it. Pour in the mixture and cover with crust. Bake in hot oven for 25 minutes.

* * *

SAUTED CARROTS — Six carrots, 1 onion, ¼ cup bacon fat, pepper and salt to taste.

Scrape and slice carrots thin. Chop onions. Fry onion in bacon fat until slightly cooked. Add car-

Sausage Is a Wholesome And Popular Food

Made of various meats and of great variety, under Federal and State supervision assuring sanitary conditions, they are a boon to the housewife preparing meals in a hurry.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator From New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Do you know that sausages have been used for many centuries and are nt a food product of recent invention? In fact, some authorities claim that this form of food has been known for more than 3,000 years.

Sausages are a popular food, yet there are many who avoid them and think they are difficult to digest. Sausages are not indigestible when properly chewed and temperately used. They are difficult to digest only when eaten hurriedly and in too large quantities. They are easily digested when eaten with salads and other vegetables.

In the early days of the industry sausages were often poorly made. Improved methods now assure the purchaser of a wholesome food, made under sanitary conditions. The modern methods of preparation differ markedly from those of former years. Federal and state laws now regulate this great industry.

There are numerous varieties, but there are really only two general types—fresh sausage and dry sausage. Some are freshly ground and highly seasoned, such as bologna and frankfurters.

The dry variety keeps for a long time if stored in a cool and dry place. These sausages are salted, spiced and then dried slowly. A few kinds are smoked. This type is often called "summer sausage," for at that time it was only sold during warm weather.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF MEAT

Sausage meat varies, depending upon the kind of meat used and the manner of blending the spices. It consists of chopped beef, usually pork, or both. The choice grades are made from prime whole cuts.

The meat is cured, spiced and stuffed into beef, sheep or hog casings. The casings are made from the thoroughly cleansed alimentary tract of animals, or from cellulose. Many persons remove the casings before eating the sausages. This is not necessary if they are of animal origin. They are edible and harmless.

To help you in your selection of sausages, I am listing a few of the most popular kinds and what they are made of if they adhere to the best standards of manufacture.

BLOOD SAUSAGE

Blood sausage, or wurst, is made of fat pork cut into small pieces, to which some finely-chopped lean pork or beef, hog blood and spices are added. This is stuffed into beef casings with three or four pieces of tongue, and then is boiled.

Bologna sausage is named after a city in Italy, but most of the bologna consumed in this country is domestic. Beef bologna consists of chopped beef, veal and pork, spiced and stuffed into beef rings, cooked and smoked. Ham bologna contains large portions of smoked lean pork shoulder or shoulder butt.

Frankfurters or frankfort sausages are probably the best known of the sausages. They are a mixture of lean beef and lean pork, spiced and stuffed into narrow casings. The frankfurter is well smoked, but does not keep fresh long.

WINE IN SALAMI

Pork sausage is made of finely chopped lean, fresh pork trimmings. Spices like nutmeg, cloves, mace and sage, are added.

There are many kinds of salami. The most popular is Italian salami, which consists of coarse chopped lean pork and finely chopped lean beef. This is moistened with red wine or grape-juice and flavored with garlic and spices. It is stuffed into beef casings and air dried.

Sausages help the busy housewife serve quickly dishes that are tempting. Sausages are attractive, palatable and nutritious. They may be used in a variety of ways for any meal of the day.

SPINACH LOAF—One cup milk, ½ pound soft yellow cheese, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 large can spinach, 1 cup bread crumbs, 3 slices bacon.

Heat milk in double boiler, add cheese and seasonings and cook slowly until cheese is melted, stirring occasionally. Thoroughly drain spinach, add milk and cheese. Mix well, place in loaf pan and cover with bread crumbs and bacon cut in pieces. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate over, 350 degrees.

DOUBLE-DECK PIE—Lower deck—Two cups strained pumpkin, 2 teaspoons ginger, 1 teaspoon salt, ½-teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg, 1 cup milk, ½-cup sugar, 2 eggs, well beaten.

Add seasonings and beaten eggs to pumpkin. Then add milk and pour into pastry-lined pie tin. Bake at 450 degrees for 10 minutes, then at 350 degrees until firm. Dissolve gelatin in a little cold water, then pour over it the boiling hot applesauce, to which sugar and nutmeg have been added. Pour this over the still warm pumpkin and set away for a day in a cool place. Before serving, a thin coating of meringue or whipped cream may be added.

Mix all ingredients well together, put into well-greased loaf pan and bake in 375 degree oven until done. Serve hot or cold, garnished with parsely and slices of hard-cooked eggs and sprinkling of paprika.

TOMATO BASKET SALAD WITH DELICIOUS CREAM DRESSING—6 ripe tomatoes, 1 small cucumber, 1 head lettuce, 1 small stalk celery, 1 small green pepper, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1 cup salad dressing, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Shape tomatoes into baskets, remove seeds, peel cucumbers, cut into dice and season highly. Mix with ½ cup of cream dressing and fill baskets with mixture, and put a spoonful of dressing on top. Sprinkle a little chopped parsley over this and serve on shredded lettuce.

CREAM DRESSING—5 egg yolks, 1 cup sour cream, ¼ cup lemon juice, ½ cup water, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 3 teaspoons sugar, ⅛ teaspoon cayenne.

LOOK OUT FOR THESE SYMPTOMS OF CONSTIPATION

Get Relief With Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sallow complexions, and sleeplessness are often warning signs of common constipation. Unless checked, constipation may impair health.

Today, you can get rid of common constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than taking patent medicines.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. Serious cases, with every meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

My Own Life Story By Evelyn Nesbit Thaw

horde of newspapermen met us. Never will I forget the amazement registered on their faces when Thaw announced we were going to the Hotel Virginia, at that time a quiet, obscure, family hotel. Naturally, they expected us to go to one of the big, popular hotels of the day. They couldn't understand.

When we arrived at the hotel, and the last newspaperman had left, Thaw said to me:

"Now, when your 'different' Mr. White reads about us in the newspapers, he can burn and rave. He has lost you forever."

A Serious Talk

I decided it was time to have a serious talk with Harry.

"Listen, Harry," I said, "now that we're married, the least you can do is settle down and live a normal life. Your mother would be the first person to tell you I am right about this.

"And another thing, you know all about me, all about my personal, private affairs, my past life.

"I married you with no secrets held back, and that's a lot more than some women can say. It's about time you started to forget. Get that monomania out of your head. I will be true to you. Now drop the everlasting raving about Stanford White."

"Take that back," he screamed, charging at me with both fists upraised. "take that back! Take back that name!"

"All right, then," I said, "the B. You promised to forget the B."

I could never bring myself to call Stanford White "beast" or "blackguard," and so, if you remember, I had compromised and made the best of a bad situation by promising to refer to White always as "the B."

I faced Thaw now without cringing and continued:

"Thousands of people have married under such circumstances and far worse. Your own life has been anything but clean and decent, and you ought to appreciate that I'm being fair and square with you."

But Thaw was off on his favorite subject, raving about White as a "hideous beast," and there was only one thing to do—detour his one-track mind on to something else.

"Well, anyway, you can't keep this up forever. Now that we're married, you will have to be a good sport and forget it. Now, what are we going to do here in Chicago? What are your plans?"

This episode throws a clear light on the peculiar, twisted reasoning of a brain like Thaw's. Any normal man would have been less jealous or worried about the Stanford White part of my life than my affair with the handsome youth I have previously mentioned. But this episode never seemed to interest Thaw. In fact, he dismissed it nonchalantly, saying:

"Nobody could blame you for liking him. It was a perfectly natural thing for you to be attracted to him. But that hideous beast!"

Then he would start weeping. All I could do was to try my utmost to change the subject.

Honeymoon

From Chicago we went to Milwaukee for a few days, so that I could see my old friend "Prunes," of DeMille School days.

Then on to the Grand Canyon of Arizona and the Yosemite Valley. We spent a week in the Yosemite Valley, engaged two guides, spent every day on horseback, went off on some trail to see the numerous beautiful waterfalls, to climb high mountains and see the magnificent scenery. We were photographed on the famous Overhanging Rock.

One day on one of these trips we stopped on a small plateau to rest. Thaw wandered off somewhere and the guides sat down to enjoy a smoke. Suddenly one of them noticed me prowling about on my knees about the rocks.

"Mrs. Thaw," he exclaimed, "what on earth are you doing?"

"I'm looking for a rattlesnake," I answered.

"Good heavens!" he cried, "If one happens to be about, you'll be bitten. Please don't do that. It's too dangerous."

For some reason or other I wanted to see a diamond-backed rattlesnake and had a wild idea that by poking about the rocks I would find one.

On another day we had spent the entire morning ascending a steep trail. High up on a mountain top the scenery below presented a most marvelously beautiful sight. We stopped there to rest.

"There is another trail," said the guide, "leading from here to a still higher point, but it's very steep and somewhat dangerous."

A Nest of Snakes

We had only one guide with us that day. Thaw wanted to make the trip up the higher trail, but wouldn't take me. So the guide left me with the horse and gave me his rifle, saying:

"We will be within earshot, and we won't be away more than a half hour. There are no dangerous animals hereabouts. The horses are securely tied, but if anything frightens you, just fire the rifle and we will return immediately."

While they were gone, I wandered along the edge of a precipice and suddenly, on a rocky ledge about 20 feet below me, I saw a perfect ball of snakes writhing about. I stood directly above them. There must have been at least 50 of them. I gazed too fascinated to move. After a while, I ran back to the horses and chose the safety of the saddle until Thaw and the guide returned. I said nothing about the snakes. I was afraid the guide would shoot at them.

I wanted to let them live. They were beautiful.

Later, when we left the Yosemite Valley and [illegible] driving along a California road in an old-fashioned sort of wagon, the horses plunged and reared suddenly, the driver pulled up, and there, directly in our path lay a larger rattler curled up, sound asleep in the sun. Thaw killed it.

A Note from Home

When we reached Pasadena, reporters and photographers turned up everywhere demanding pictures and interviews. I kept in the background and Thaw did all the talking. He must have said something about his income. For one day when I happened to be alone in our hotel rooms, I found on the floor a scrap of paper. Picking it up, I read:

"P. S. How dare you say to newspapermen 'my money,' 'my income,' when you know you are utterly dependent on me for every cent you spend?"

It was signed "Your mother."

I put it on the desk and later handed it to Harry.

"Did you read this?" he demanded.

"Yes, I couldn't help it. I found it on the floor. I didn't know what it was."

He flew into another fine rage.

On the night we left Banff, en route back to Pittsburgh, a most uncanny thing occurred. We had a drawing-room on the train. Harry had gone to the smoker and I sat alone in the dark drawing-room, looking out the window.

The night was a brilliantly beautiful one with a full moon and many stars blazing in the sky. Suddenly, a most peculiar feeling came over me. For the moment I turned as if to stone. It was a bad case of "goose flesh."

Looking at the stars, thinking of nothing in particular, an extraordinary throught flashed through my mind.

"Something terrific is going to happen in your life—something so big that it will overwhelm you, but you will come out of it all right."

A Warning?

And then a feeling of relief and well-being possessed me. If there is such a thing as a presentiment, I believe I had one them. Some mysterious psychic power of force trying to warn me? Perhaps—but—I failed to read the handwriting on the wall!

Aside from the tantrums which were aroused by anything that reminded him of Stanford White, Harry behaved himself very well on our honeymoon trip.

The world always judges us for what we do or what it thinks we do—never does for what we actually are. Never! One of the great New York newspapers about this time, in its Sunday magazine section, published a full page story with this caption:

"The Face That Won $5,000,000."

It was a long, rosy account, describing my career as an artist's model and show girl and my marriage to a Pittsburgh millionaire. Reading that story, one would imagine a happy marriage, a beautiful young bride, a rich, handsome young husband followed everywhere by a flock of rosy fat cupids.

I had to laugh. The true facts were so different, but I could easily see how the man writing the story saw us in that light.

Back to Pittsburgh

We returned to "Lyndhurst." Mother Thaw gave us the best rooms in the house—a whole wing to ourselves on the second floor.

Then began the dullest, most uninteresting period of my life.

Not so dull and uninteresting, however, to be proof against the impending tragedy of which I had so many times been warned by my intuition.

I had been deaf to that intuition. And so, under the direction of Mother Thaw, who supervised almost every act of every member of her household, Harry and I settled down to married life.

If it hadn't been for Mother Thaw's domination we might have snatched at least a year of something approaching happiness.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Private Dances Often Worse Than Public Ones

Will a girl be gobbled up by some wolf in human form if she goes to a public dance hall?

Flory heard she would. She'd been going to Public Dances, and nothing wrong had happened to her or to her chum; but when the Office Force heard where she spent some of her lonely evenings, they held up their hands in horror.

"Dreadful!" they chorused. "You must stop right away! It isn't safe to go where you don't know people!"

"Is that true?" we asked.

And did we get answers?

We did! Answers that were a surprise to even a hard-boiled columnist! For, according to most of the youngsters who wrote, the Public Dance, with its floor rules and its police matron or "bouncer," are Sunday School Sociables compared to the average Frat or Club Dance—or many a supposedly respectable Private Party.

There was the letter from Bob.

Bob has asked us not to print his real name. He lives in this town. His folks are prominent people, and he likes to step high, wide and handsome with the dizziest of 'em. But, once in a while, even Bob stops to think. Flory's letter brought about one of those rare moments, and he was moved to give us the other side of the picture.

A few nights ago Bob went to a Big Blow Out. Given, said he, by a swanky girls' school at an ultra-swanky hotel. No gangsters in that crowd—no lurking gorillas or gun molls. No representatives even of the Common Herd, however respectable. Everything of the Choosiest. So there, surely, one might have expected to see a Nice, Sweet, Innocent, Safe Party.

BECAME DRINKING PARTY

And so it started. Early in the evening a few Watchful Mamas sat around and chatted, and everything was pretty-pretty. Then gradually the Mamas grew tired, or bored—yawned—strolled away to their beds, or bridge tables.

And then the riot started!

Out came the hip flasks.

"And," said Bob, "before many hours had passed out, most of the party had, too."

And did all this come as a shocking surprise to the management of the hotel? Anything but! They had seen "Private Parties" before.

A battery of porters and matrons waited in the dressing rooms with plenty of iced towels, black coffee, tomato juice and celery, ready to work on youngsters still able to stagger to their waiting arms!

A BAD EXAMPLE

And those not able to stagger? They were draped on tables—or snoring under them.

Is that a pretty picture of Nice People, nicely shut away from Vulgar and Dangerous Public—a party you'd want your youngster to take in? You tell 'em!

Peggy or Johnny won't meet White Slavers, or Gangsters, in company like that—but what kind of a design for living will they take away from an evening of such rotten "fun?"

"But all Private Parties are not like that?" Of course not. There are still plenty of decent kids who can get together and have a jolly evening without wallowing—and riff-raff does get into public places.

But any public hall that tried to put on any such vicious orgy would be raided, pronto.

So next time you hear folks condemning the Public Dances, or the lonely youngsters who go to them, remember that there's more than one side to the picture. If they need cleaning-up, maybe some of Our Best Homes do, too.

Fay King Notes That Girls' Names Have Style Cycles

By FAY KING

Names for girl children seem to have style cycles.

Long ago little girls were called Charity and Patience. Some were named after aunts who had curious names like Arthusa and Clementina.

Then came a change to names like Marjorie, Dorothy, Beatrice and Genevieve. After that so many little girls were called by double names such as Elizabeth-Anne and Mary-Louise, never shortened.

All of a sudden the letter "I" disappeared entirely and we read only Marylynne, Maryan and Myldred.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Threatened with Revolver, Madge Waits in Suspense

Never have I come nearer to swooning than when I felt Tony's revolver prodding my shoulder. I knew that Tony had been suspicious of me from the first, and that only the intervention of Nick had kept him from setting me out into the road and going on, without any attempt to aid me in my pursuit of the car in which Marion was imprisoned.

Now that Nick had disappeared down the road, did Tony mean to do away with me? Would he really dare the certain displeasure, even the probable vengeance of his associate?

"Look here, you," Tony's voice was low and baneful, and he emphasized every word with small jabs of the revolver. "Nick may play the fool over you. He acts like a boob over every good-looking skirt he sees. But I'm onto you, see?

"If I were running this show, you'd never have boarded this boat in the first place; but you're here, and I can't throw you out. There's something I can do, though, and that's make sure you don't do any double-crossing while Nick's gone.

"When he comes back, you'll be his funeral. But I'll put the fear of God in you till then. Are you listening?"

"Yes." I had not breath for any further words.

THREATENED BY TONY

"All right. Here's an earful. If you make a single move out of the way, like trying to get out of the car or to start it, or to get a drop on me—oh, I'll bet you've got a gat, but I won't frisk you; let Nick do that—I'm going to drill you and throw you over that fence into the ditch. I'll tell Nick you got away, and you'll be too dead to let him know different. Do you get me?"

From somewhere I mustered up courage to say "Yes" again, and to add, "But what shall I do if your friend calls the signal 'Clear!'?"

"Do just what he told you to do; start the car and throw the doors open, ready for a getaway. But, just remember, I'll have this thing"—as he prodded my shoulder again—"up against your back, and if you try any monkey business, I'll drill you, sure as hell."

"You'll not have to drill me," I said, my spirits indefinably rising at something in his tone which made me realize that his words were mostly bluff. "I'm not going to move until your friend comes back."

"See that you don't," he growled, and then, for minutes that seemed an eternity, I sat tensely waiting, straining my eyes into the darkness, and with my ears alert for the slightest sound.

RETURNS WITH RONALD

It was to my ears that the first signal of Nick's appearance came. Short, sobbing breaths, as of an animal, came through the darkness, and I caught my own breath in an agony of apprehension. I was sure that Nick had no reason to voice such anguish. It must be Ronald approaching. If so, what was causing his distress?

I had to wait but an instant more, then Nick's figure came out of the darkness behind us, his hand upon Ronald's arm. As they came up to the car, Ronald broke away and flung his arms around me.

"Oh! Aunt Madge!" he sobbed. "I lost her."

Before I could answer him, I heard Nick's voice, in cold fury, addressed to Tony.

"What are you doing with that gat out, you——" The foul expletives came thick and fast, and I felt Ronald stiffen. But I took advantage of the altercation to put my lips close to Ronald's ear and whisper. "Remember, your name is Ronald Cowper; Marion's is Marion Southey; mine is Madge Adams. Don't make any mistake. I'll tell you why later. Have you them safe?"

"Yes," he whispered, and then I spoke aloud.

"Never mind spieling anything now, Kid. You'll have time as we go. Get going, Babe. Let's see how well you can drive. I'll just stand here and give you directions."

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Unusual Bidding Situation

I am indebted to Mr. Edward P. Hyde, an American resident in Paris, for the hand below. It was played recently in a duplicate tournament in the French capital, which is, at this moment, in the throes of the question that always arises where Contract is introduced: "What is the best system of bidding?" and it presents a remarkably striking example of the merits of the approach principle.

At two of the tables the Vanderbilt club bid was used, while at the third the Culbertson System was followed.

South, Dealer.

Table 1:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

At table No. 1 West opened with the 4 of spades, the 10 was played from Dummy, and East covered with the King. The result was seven made on a contract of three.

At the second table North played the hand and made 12 of the 13 tricks. At neither table did the bidding get beyond three notrump. Of course, this is no reflection whatever on the Vanderbilt System; it is a splendid system of bidding, but probably a little too complex for the beginner at the Bridge table. However, it is undoubtedly true that North does have difficulty in making the correct response to the artificial bids.

The third table, where the Culbertson System was used, developed the following bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ◇	Pass	3 NT (1)	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	5 ◇ (2)	Pass
6 ◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

As Mr. Hyde points out, the two bids by North, (1) and (2), are the key bids to the final declaration. Bid (1), jumping the notrump response, shows the 1½ honor-tricks which the hand contains. Bid (2) indicates adequate trump support when partner can bid the suit twice—i. e., either two trumps to the Queen or three small trumps. But these two bits of information are precisely what the original Declarer needs to justify the Slam call. At most, he can lose but 1 trick in the diamond suit, and there is a possibility that there will be no losers at all. Moreover, by the method of Plastic Valuation, he can readily fill in most of the gaps in his hand.

If the 1½ honor-tricks consist of the three missing Kings, the Small Slam is assured (except for a possible ruff on the first round), and a Grand Slam depends only on the fall of the Queen of diamonds. With several other combinations, the Small Slam is assured and the Grand Slam rests on a two-to-one chance.

But there are certain other possible combinations of honor-tricks in the Dummy hand (e. g., the King and Knave of clubs, the Queen of diamonds and the Knave of spades), such that even a Small Slam would depend on a successful finesse. It is therefore more prudent to bid for the Small Slam rather than the Grand Slam.

As the cards lie, however, a Grand Slam is on the table, no matter what Opening lead is made. It is only necessary, after having drawn all the trumps, to lead the spade Ace, return to Dummy with a club and lead the Queen of spades through the King.

TODAY'S QUESTION

♠ K Q J 10 7 4 3 ♡ 5 ◇ A J 3 2 ♣ 9

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Cliques

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it good form at a dance to associate only with those in one's own "crowd?"

Personally, I feel that it is ill-bred to have a man cut friends on the dance floor just because those friends did not happen to come in his crowd.

When I go to a dance with an escort I am bored if I have to dance every dance with him, for it makes me feel conspicuous, and I am afraid that I am keeping him from dancing with his friends.

I wonder if the idea started with formals and people are dragging that same idea over to informals, or is it an attempt at smartness?

For instance, at a private dance given by an organization with which I am connected, where there should be no one objectionable, I understand two or three couples sit by themselves and dance together all evening, each group a clique unto themselves. How much better time those people would have if they would all enjoy one another.

I have been teaching in High School for 15 years and am wondering if I am and have been wrong in trying to teach my students not to be "cliquish?" E.

I realize how your fine, democratic spirit feels about this discrimination between those in "our crowd" and those not so fortunate as to be included in this certain group to have come together. I feel as you feel about it, but I suppose nothing can be done about this clannishness. Parties are gotten together to go to dances, and it seems to be the "smart" thing to go, to stay together and to dance with only members of that set.

Afternoon Dress

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What would be the correct thing to wear to a Sunday afternoon tea held at a hotel—a sport or semi-formal dress?

IN DOUBT

Wear a formal day costume, an ensemble, or an afternoon dress to the Sunday afternoon tea. A sport dress would be inappropriate.

SILHOUETTES

By LAURA WHEELER

Though silhouettes were originated as a cheap means of making a portrait, their decorative appeal has carried them through the ages. Inspired by paper silhouettes, they have been evolved in cross-stitch. These quaint colonial scenes are fun to do, because it is so easy to weave a story around them. The two designs make attractive companion pictures for a living room or bedroom. Their use, however, is not limited to pictures, for they would do very well for pillow tops or inserts for a tray.

The pattern contains two cross-stitch motifs; that of the men is 7x14 inches; that of the women is 8x13½ inches. Directions and material requirements for making the motifs into a picture or tray are included.

Send 10c for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

'WON'T MUFF TITLE CHANCE,' RAMEY SAYS

SPORTS

By JAMES J. LONG

Another Regular Ready. In Three Hitless Games.
Still Chance for Deals. Riegels Lives It Down.
Picinich Holds Record. Big Job for Chocolate.

SWETONIC BOOSTS BUC HURLING STOCK

PIRATE PITCHING STOCK today had taken still another jump, following the presentation of evidence that one more member of the regular staff is in winning shape. Steve Swetonic looked like his old self in trimming the floundering Phils to hang up his first victory of the season and give the Bucs a clean sweep in the four-game series. He never was in serious trouble, and was as strong at the finish as when he first stepped on the rubber.

Steve Swetonic

Swetonic had started only twice previously, and lost both times, first to the Cubs on April 18 through wobbly support, and next to the Cards on April 25, when he lasted only four innings. Apparently, however, after three weeks of rest his arm is as good as it ever was, and his excellent form yesterday gives promise that he may be counted on hereafter for his regular turn, assuring the Pirates of the services of one of the smartest and most effective pitchers in the league. All that is needed now is for Remy Kremer to prove that he still has the old winning stuff, and the Bucs will be set to cope with any opposition, without fear of being caught short-handed in the pitching department when double-headers begin to put a strain on the staff.

YOU'LL HAVE TO go back a long way to find another instance in which a pitcher shut out the same club twice in succession with only one hit, as Silas Johnson has done for Cincinnati against Boston. Johnson beat the Braves, 4 to 0, and gave them only one hit on May 5. Only 27 men faced him. Yesterday only 30 came up, counting a couple that drew walks, making a total of only 57 batters up in 18 innings.

That's the third shutout of the season for Silas, and two of them were 1-to-0 affairs. The Cubs were the victims in the other game he won by that score. All of Johnson's three defeats this year were administered by the Pirates. Yesterday's reverse was the third 1-to-0 defeat suffered this spring by the Braves, who came to Pittsburgh today for a single game this afternoon and the year's first local double-header tomorrow. The two other pitchers to beat Bill McKechnie's club 1 to 0 were Carl Hubbell and Walter Beck. The Braves have been shut out seven times this season and have lost eight games by one run.

THE BAN ON the trading or selling of major league players did not go into effect with the 23-player limit. Clubs will be permitted to make deals of that nature until midnight of June 15, and there is a strong prospect that several dickers of more or less importance will be put through in the meantime.

At least, if no deals develop it will not be due to any lack of effort on the part of some clubs that are seeking new men. The Dodgers want another outfielder, the Yankees would like to get a right-hand pitcher, and the Red Sox will continue their buying and trading.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD that Max Carey tried to swap a pitcher to the Cardinals for Outfielder Ernest Orsatti, but pitching material is one thing that the Cards don't need, and they refused to be tempted, so the Brooklyn pilot is now making offers elsewhere. The Yanks are said to have sensed a need for a stronger right-hand pitcher, when they sold George Pipgras to the Red Sox, and are prepared to spend the $30,000 they got for Pipgras and Bill Werber, and more if necessary, in an effort to get an experienced boxman of the type desired. George Blaeholder, of the Browns, has been mentioned. A year ago, the St. Louis club would have laughed at any such proposal, but the recent sale of Rick Ferrell and Lloyd Brown indicated a change of policy, and the Yanks think Phil Ball may be induced to part with Blaeholder, though the disposal of any more high-class material probably would hill the little patronage the Browns still hold in the Mound City.

Val Picinich

CATCHER VAL PICINICH, who drew his unconditional release when the Brooklyn club reduced its forces, holds the distinction of being the only backstop who ever caught in as many as three no-hit games in the majors. And his performances were scattered among three different clubs, all in the American League.

Picinich made his first appearance in a no-hit game as receiver for Bullet Joe Bush, of the A's, against the Indians, on August 26, 1916. Val was behind the bat for the Senators when Walter Johnson held the Red Sox hitless on July 1, 1920, and he was catching for the Red Sox when Howard Ehmke kept the A's from hitting safely on September 7, 1923.

IN POINT OF service, Picinich also was the oldest backstop in the big show when the Dodgers turned him loose. He started his major career with the A's in 1916, and had remained steadily in the fast set except for parts of the 1917 and 1918 seasons, when he was farmed to Atlanta in the Southern Association.

Catching for the A's, Senators and Red Sox, Val served in the American League until 1926, when he was transferred to Cincinnati in the National through the waiver channel. The Dodgers obtained him from the Reds in 1929, for Johnny Gooch and Rube Ehrhardt.

IN DISCUSSING WITH New York critics his plans for the coming football season at Fordham, Jimmy Crowley, former Notre Dame halfback and Michigan State coach, admitted that while the system he uses is basically the Rockne system, he has made a couple of changes. He uses the lateral pass developing from a forward pass to a great extent and that is a departure from the original system. Also he employs the spinner play without the extra shift that Rockne used to get the halfback into position. That extra shift that figured in the spinner plays at Notre Dame under Rockne's coaching is rendered unnecessary by the wingback idea that Crowley has adopted.

HAVING RUN THE wrong way himself on a football field, Roy Riegels evidently feels that the experience has qualified him to teach others the right direction. The goat of the famous reverse run in the Rose Bowl game between California and Georgia Tech on New Years Day, 1929, is embarking on a coaching career.

Those who were pulling for Riegels to live down the Rose Bowl blunder were gratified when he was elected captain of the California eleven for the following season and wound up with the ranking of one of the best centers ever produced on the coast. And they will be further gratified at learning that he has been appointed head football coach at Tamalpais Union High School in Mill Valley in the far West, and will be in line for a bigger job if he makes good.

HOLLYWOOD FEARS THAT Bull Montana is getting to be a softy, following the news received of a mat bout in which Bull wrestled somebody in Arizona and put on his customary violent exhibition.

Seaman Watson

The opponent wasn't feazed. He calmly tossed Bull out of the ring, and instead of the floor's needing repairs, the great Montana came up with a broken collar bone. "The big sissy," was the comment of Spike Robinson, a coast pal.

IT ISN'T OFTEN that two foreign fighters battle for a world championship in an American ring, but that will be the setting in New York tonight, when Kid Chocolate, Cuban Negro, defends the featherweight title against Seaman Watson, of England. The long delay in the staging of this 15-round bout has brought quite a change in conditions. Originally, Watson appeared to be outmatched, despite the evidence of ability he had given abroad in defeating Nel Tarleton, the British champion. But in the meantime, the Seaman has demonstrated that he is very much the real thing by lacing such an established top-notcher as Fidel La Barba. He showed enough all-around ability, aggressiveness and fighting heart in that fight to indicate that Chocolate will have quite a job on his hands tonight if the Briton isn't weakened by making the 126-pound weight limit. If at his best, the Negro figures to win on speed and general class in a fight that promises to be a hummer for action, but he can't afford to be a whit below his top standards, and even at that Watson must be conceded a chance to take the title.

Harry Gordon speaking. Harry is by way of being the manager of Wesley Ramey, of Grand Rapids, Mich., leading contender, along with Barney Ross, of Chicago, for the world lightweight championship. Gordon himself is a former boxer. He was a great little bantamweight in his time, fighting Carl Tremaine and all of the stars of a half-dozen years ago. Since then he has grown into light-heavyweight proportions. He says:

"Ramey is on the spot. After four years of fighting he's up there now at a point where he's a standout for a title match against a champion he's already beaten decisively in a non-championship bout. Apparently all he needs to become champion is a chance against Tony Canzoneri in a title affair. But one misstep—and blooie! It's all off.

"You know, this championship business is about 90 per cent opportunity. The woods are full of good fighters who never get anywhere, because they don't get a chance. They are not properly handled or maneuvered into spots where they will have a chance to capitalize their ability. That win over Canzoneri a few weeks ago put Wesley on second base in the championship game. A short single will drive him home. But he can't afford to be caught napping off the bag."

DUBLINSKY 'TOUGH'

Gordon had in mind particularly Ramey's match with Harry Dublinsky, the tall Polish youth, of Chicago, at the Arena, on the North Side, tonight. Dublinsky is well known here through his two fights at the Garden against Frankie Bojarski and Tony Falco. Ramey has beaten him twice in close fights, and he thinks he's in for another hard battle tonight. He sizes up Dublinsky as a boxer who is "hard to fight."

Told that Dublinsky kept boring into Falco and fighting away to the body, Ramey said:

"He won't do that to me. He'll wait on me. I'll have to carry the fight to him. I know, because that's the way we fought those other two times."

RAMEY UNDER WEIGHT

Just how seriously Ramey, a classy boxer, regards his contendership position among the lightweights may be appreciated from SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, May 19.—All day long I peered out of the Pan-American airplane down on jewel-like islands set in the blue sea.

I have traveled all over the world, including 152 countries, during the past 18 years and I assure you there is no other place on earth where it is possible in one day to see such unfolding of romance, history and beauty as when flying over the West Indies.

Early this morning I left Trinidad, where the natives eat flying fish and drink swizzles.

First in view was Tobago, the island of Robinson Crusoe. Then came the Barbados, the islands with whiskers. The word "Barbados" means "The Bearded Ones." They are so named because their trees are bearded with moss.

Next we passed by the pitons of St. Lucia, and the H. M. S. Diamond Rock came into view. Diamond Rock looks like a battleship. Once it was listed in the archives of the British government and was manned by a full crew of a battleship.

Martinique next, famous for its two volcanoes, Mt. Pelee and Mt. Josephine. The eruption of Mt. Pelee destroyed the entire city of St. Pierre, leaving only one man alive, a prisoner in an underground vault who was already condemned to death. Josephine almost destroyed Napoleon!

Bucs to Attend Benefit Show

Members of the Pittsburgh club, including President William E. Benswanger and Manager George Gibson, will attend a musical and athletic entertainment to be held at St. Mary's Lyceum Hall, 343 Forty-fifth street, Tuesday night of next week, the proceeds of which will go to the unemployed of that district.

SPORT VIGNETTES

You wouldn't think the depression would have any great effect on the caliber of the college athletic teams, but it has had, as you will learn if you speak to any of the coaches on the subject . . . The students are depression-minded, and the freshman teams in most of the institutions this year have been below normal, both in the matter of quantity and quality, and there is much wrinkling of brows as the mentors look ahead to the replacements for varsities.

"So many of the youngsters have been affected by the depression, now just beginning to lift, that they have not been able to apply themselves to sports," one of the coaches said in discussing the situation . . . "Letters from home have told them of hard times, necessitating cuts in allowances, and have worried them in other ways, so that they have stuck close to their studies, unwilling to sacrifice the time necessary to becoming proficient in athletics . . . Virtually all varsity teams during the coming year will be affected as a result."

Gus, the Cynic, says he can't understand how any starting Phillie pitcher could remain in a game long enough to break a leg scoring in the third inning, as John Berly did at Forbes Field the other day . . . But, having remained around so long, he adds, it is no wonder he suffered the injury roaming around such unfamiliar territory as home plate . . . Good thing it wasn't Pitcher Ad Liska who broke his leg . . . Good old Ad is in almost every Phillie game as a relief man, and it has got so that no official scorer of a Phillie game considers it complete unless he sees Liska among those present when he checks up.

Harry Dublinsky, who has fought both, says Tony Canzoneri suould defeat Barney Ross when they meet for the title in Chicago this summer . . . When Dublinsky fought Canzoneri, the referee gave Harry the decision, but the judges voted the other way . . . The Ross fight was declared a draw . . . Harry is 22 years old and is one of a family of 21 children . . . He has 14 brothers . . . Sunny Jim McVey, Pittsburgh, 182, won by technical knockout over Jack Taylor, 187, of Albany, in five rounds.

The Book team, defending champion in the City League, faces its first real test of the season this evening when the Dormont club is met at the South Hills park.

For two years, in fact ever since Homewood ceased to be a pennant contender, Books and Dormont have been fighting it out for the title, and the games between these clubs always are packed full of fight and action.

Leo Carroll probably will twirl for Dormont, with Joe Semler working for the champs. The game will be called at 6:30.

Two other interesting games are carded. The Brentwood Gillespies are scheduled to meet Homewood at the Playgrounds, and the J. L. Thomas nine will travel to the Salt Works to meet the North Siders.

When April arrived to greet the spring training Pirates, Manager George Gibson was apprehensive over a staff of pitchers which was taking defeats too often at the hands of Pacific Coast League ball clubs. At that late date not more than two sharpshooters indicated they could fool the minor league teams through nine innings. Today Gibby has eight hurlers worthy of being called "starting pitchers," the only doubtful one being the veteran Remy Kremer, who looks better now than he did at any time last season.

There you have a contrast that emphasizes forcibly the vicissitudes of professional baseball. The same eight pitchers of an uncertain spring have come to the front so speedily the manager is in a quandary as to making a selection each day. Meine, French, Swift, Swetonic, Hoyt, Smith, Chagnon and Harris are all on the anxious leash, awaiting the assignment.

STEVE IN FORM AGAIN

The pleasing situation on the staff of the league's pacesetters developed on top of Steve Swetonic's classy showing against the Quakers yesterday when the North Side member yielded only six hits and annexed a 6-2 victory for Pittsburgh. Steve had started two previous games. A wildly disputed decision in his first start of the season, a tussle with the Cubs in Chicago, hurt Swetonic and he bowed to Lonnie Warneke in a hard-fought battle. He also started a contest in St. Louis wherein he was not impressive.

Steve was himself yesterday. He kept his curve ball away from Burt Shotton's righthand batters and he was able to shut out Chuck Klein, thanks to a fielding gem by Capt. Traynor; an assist by the way, which ranks with the best plays of the year anywhere.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK

Nick Altrock

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Say, don't pull out any crying towels for Connie Mack's As. When the race started they had all the symptoms of a slow and painful death, like weak hitting, poor pitching, sluggish baserunning and loss of close decisions. But I guess Connie has been giving them yeast cakes or somebecause they are whacking their way to glory now. Once they were close enough to the cellar to sift the ashes, but they'll be up fighting for a place in the pent house before long.

On the other hand, the Yanks started the race like it was a sprint in a six-day bicycle orgy. But even with a President like Roosevelt you can't suspend the law of gravitation and the Yankees are now settling down like the cement in a stucco house.

There are still eight clubs in the American League. The census takers are even including the Red Sox for the first time in years.

RETURN OF ALLEN BOOSTS YANKEE HOPES

STAR CAPTURES FIRST START OF SEASON

Associated Press.

Johnny Allen, most effective pitcher in the American League last year, is back in action again and the hopes of the New York Yankees have risen another notch.

Laid low by influenza during the training season, Allen came through in great style in his first start yesterday and beat the Detroit Tigers, 5-1. Johnny allowed only five hits, struck out six and in general showed a return to the form that brought him 17 victories against only four defeats in 1932.

HILDEBRAND BEATS NATS

Another "sophomore" flinger, lanky Oral Hildebrand, of Cleveland kept the Indians-Washington duel going full tilt as he won his sixth straight victory in a tough 10-inning battle with Earl Whitehill. The final count was 6 to 5.

Big George Earnshaw, making his first appearance for the Philadelphia Athletics since April 24, limited the Chicago White Sox to six hits while the A's gave Sam Jones, Chad Kimsey and Walter Miller a terrific pasting to win, 9 to 1. Oscar Melillo clouted a homer and a double to drive in five St. Louis runs in the Brown's 8-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Silas Johnson, Cincinnati Reds' righthander, was the day's National League star. He turned in his second one-hit game of the season to beat the Boston Braves 1 to 0 and give Cincinnati sole possession of fourth place.

DODGERS HIT HARD

The Brooklyn Dodgers, tightening their hold on third place, uncorked an eight-run first inning attack to beat St. Louis, 14 to 5, sending the cards down a notch in the standing.

The league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates gained a half game on the New York Giants as they combined a 15-hit attack with Steve Swetonic's six-hit flinging and beat the Phillies for the fourth straight time, 6 to 2. The Giants split a doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs that marked the raising of the National League pennant at Wrigley Field. Hal Schumacher's nifty elbowing won the first game for New York, 3-0, then the Cubs stepped out with a slugging attack that included homers by Babe Herman, Gabby Hartnett, Harvey Hendrick and Mark Koenig, and broke their five-game losing streak with a 10 to 1 triumph.

GRAPHIC GOLF

A DIFFERENT STYMIE SHOT

Walter Travis studied golf from all angles and left no stone unturned in his search for the most reliable ways of shotmaking. His methods of making the stymie were varied and particularly interesting. On these occasions where he faced a dead stymie with his opponent's ball situated on the edge of the cup and a foot or less separated the two spheres he used a variation of the follow shot all billiard players are acquainted with. He would strike the ball at the top to add overspin and hit the ball in front with enough force to cause it to leap over the cup while his ball followed through and dropped in.

This is not a bad idea for match play where no penalty is incurred for striking an opponent's ball, but in medal play a penalty stroke would be exacted.

Old Friends Meet Here

RAMEY TO BOX HERE TONIGHT

the fact that he has been here since last Sunday training and getting himself acclimated. He is leaving no stone unturned to send himself into the battle tuned to the moment. He said today:

"It was a good idea for me to come ahead of time and get set. I have found out that the climate here makes me shed weight. I generally go into the ring weighing around 138 pounds. In the few days I have been here I have gone down below 135. But I feel strong and full of pep."

DUBLINSKY ARRIVES

Dublinsky got in yesterday, all set to upset Ramey's applecart and championship dreams, if possible. Like Ramey, he wants to come back here to box the winner of a return bout between Tony Herrera and Tracey Cox, and, if the series pans out as expected, Matchmaker Lew Raymond, of the Arena, is thinking of bidding for a Canzoneri match with the survivor of the elimination series. Ramey, who stands out as the favorite at the moment, is ready to take the match for no pay provided the championship will be at stake. He is not going to quibble about terms and muff his big opportunity.

Like Ramey Dublinsky also has fought Canzoneri in a non-title match, but he lost the decision in a whirlwind fray. He also has beaten Johnny Jadich, former junior-welterweight champion, a feat copied by Ramey, and holds a victory over Tracey Cox.

LICHTENSTEIN IN SEMI

Abe Meyer Lichtenstein, of Rochester, N. Y., new stablemate of Ramey, boxes Red Bruce, local Negro redheaded middleweight, in the six-round semi-final tonight. In his only other local appearance, Lichtenstein lost a hard fight to Ted Yarosz at the Arena. Mike Sankovitch, Canonsburg heavyweight, boxes Carl Gross, of Braddock, in another feature six-rounder, and the other preliminaries see Elmer Wilson box Johnny Hazel and Harry Weekley oppose Joey Chemes.

The show goes on at 8:45, daylight saving time.

LOTT, VAN RYN FACE CANUCKS IN DOUBLES

MONTREAL, May 19.—(AP.)—The United States tossed her great tennis doubles players, George Lott and John Van Ryn, against Canada today, counting upon them to produce the victory that would clinch the North American zone Davis Cup finals.

Straight set triumphs for Ellsworth Vines, American champion, and Willmer Allison in the opening singles encounters yesterday left the invading squad needing only one victory to decide the series.

Facing almost certain elimination, Canada called upon Dr. Jack Wright and Marcel Rainville for doubles duty and hoped for the best. This same combination was beaten by Ricardo Morales and Arturo Randin, of Cuba, last week and scarcely figures to take a set from so potent a pair as Lott and Van Ryn.

Should Wright and Rainville pull an upset and win, Canada's position still would be desperate, for the Dominion squad would need to take both of the final two singles matches tomorrow to capture the series. Not even the staunchest of Canadian tennis supporters has any real hopes of that.

Neither Wright, against Allison, nor Gilbert Nunns, against Vines, had any real chance for victory in the first two singles matches. Wright succeeded in sending one set to deuce, but was soundly beaten just the same, 6-2, 7-5, 6-2. Vines' conquest of Nunns came even more easily, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

GERMANY LEADS

BERLIN, May 19.—(AP.)—Germany today won the first two singles matches of its second round Davis Cup series with Holland, F. Kuhlmann defeating G. Leembruggen, 6-3, 6-3, 6-1, and Baron Gottfried von Cramm winning from Hans Timmer, 6-2, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4.

JAPS BEAT IRISH

DUBLIN, Ireland, May 19.—(AP.)—Japan today clinched its Davis Cup series with Ireland as its doubles team defeated the Irish pair, 6-3, 8-6, 3-6, 6-2, for their third straight victory. R. Nunoi and Jiro Satch won both singles matches yesterday.

PANTHERS NEAR NET TITLE

Dr. Billy McEllroy's Pitt tennis array can spike down the city college court crown quite definitely this afternoon by running true to the dope with victory over the Dukes of Grant Siverd as the latter invade the Stadium bailiwick. The Panthers, already boasting a 9-0 decision over Carnegie Tech, which in turn tied the Bluffits, 4-4, last month and trimmed them, 6-3, on the Plaid lot yesterday, should thus retain local honors that have been theirs exclusively since the days of the powerful Duquesne squad of 1925 and the classy Tartan outfits of immediately preceding years.

WEST VA. WINS

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 19.—(AP.)—Checked in the early innings, West Virginia University's baseball team went to town in the closing frames and shut out Salem, 4 to 0, yesterday.

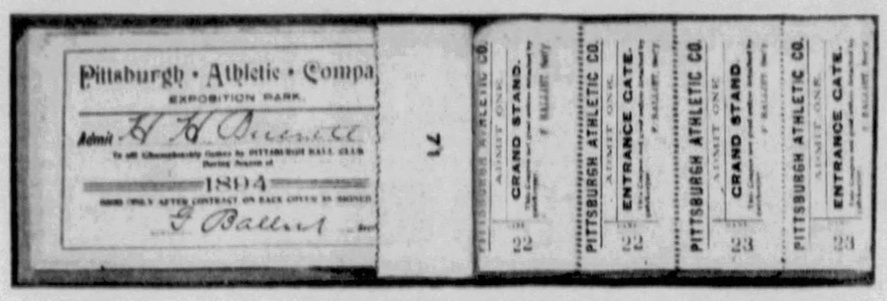
SWIM, DANCE AT 'Y'

Members of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. will entertain their friends at a swimming party following a volleyball game at the Y at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. A dance will conclude the night's entertainment.

GAINS KEEPS TITLE

LONDON, May 19.—(AP.)—Larry Gains, Toronto Negro heavyweight, retained his British Empire championship last night by outpointing the Australian, George Cook, in 15 rounds.

Pirates' Season Book for '94



SOUVENIR OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS AT EXPOSITION PARK . . . . . 'MEMBER 'EM?

Looking through some old possessions, C. L. Coss, of 108 Center avenue, Aspinwall, has come up with this season book of tickets issued to H. H. Buente for the 1894 schedule of Pirate games at Exposition Park on the North Side. The late Barney Dreyfuss did not take over the club until the turn of the century. A. C. Buckenberger was the manager at the start of the '94 season, but was succeeded by Connie Mack, then a catcher. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

STOCKS BRACE AFTER EARLY WEAKNESS

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP.)—Financial markets were somewhat wobbly today, with shares under scattered selling.

Cotton receded slightly, and wheat lost about a cent a bushel The stock market dipped 1 to 2 points in spots in the industrials and rails, despite an upswing in the oils, in anticipation of announcement of a federal program of control. The entire list, however, stiffened a little after mid-day.

Standard of New Jersey advanced with other oils, despite publication of its annual report showing net of only 1 cent a share for 1932. This was counterbalanced as a market factor, however, by Washington news that early introduction of federal legislation was planned. President Teagle of Standard of New Jersey, said in his report, "the serious consequences to the nation of the present deplorable situation support a belief that constructive conservation will be compelled and that production will be brought under control."

Factors influencing profit-taking in stocks were said in brokerage quarters to include failure of the rail group to break through the upper resistance level reached last September, to "confirm" the recent action of industrials, and continued strength of dollars in foreign exchange dealings. With the drop in dollars checked, and de facto stabilization in advance of the world conference under discussion as a possibility, inflation seems to have been eclipsed as a market factor, and Wall street continue to watch business news.

News from the steel trade included advances in sheet and strip prices in the Chicago area. The weekly mercantile review of Dun & Bradstreet said reports of further business expansion this week were "more numerous and indications of sustained gains were more convincing," but it found "the movement forward was at a slower pace."

GIRL IS VICTOR OVER HELEN, MAUREEN

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., May 19.—(AP.)—Catherine Singer, playing with Westchester in a triangular team competition with New Jersey and Long Island, yesterday sprang two sensational upsets as she defeated both Helen Hicks, the former National champion, and Maureen Orcutt, ace of the New Jersey contingent, in successive matches.

Playing a consistently brilliant game, Miss Singer first defeated Miss Orcutt, 3 and 2, scoring a medal 80, and then won from Miss Hicks, 1 up.

than any member of the club, but Gibson hesitates to start him or Bill Harris so long as the others are winning. Harris, by the way, looks like one of the best relief hurlers in the league.

Swetonic was in trouble only once against the Quakers. He pitched five runless rounds before the Quakers solved him for two tallies in the sixth. Steve then lightened and the invaders could not get any more runners over the late.

Paul Waner had a field day against Flint Rhem and Jim Elliott. The little slugger rapped out a homer, a triple and a double. Brother Lloyd contributed to the family act with a triple and a single. The Pirates nicked Rhem for 11 hits in six rounds and added four more as Elliot pitched.

Somers Wins Trade School Track Meet

The Somers School won the trade school track and field championship of the city yesterday at Schenley High field by scoring 114½ points. Connelley Trade, last year's winner, was second with 70 points. Allegheny Vocational scored 29½ points and Washington Trade 21 points.

The winner will receive the Finex trophy, which must be won three times to become permanent property.

AUDACIOUS GIRL REVEALS SECRETS OF SOUTHERN SEAS

CHAPTER IV.

Living at Ah Chee's, I had Chinatown at my elbow; Chinatown that perforce borders upon Occidental Rabaul, but mingles with it no more than does the green Gulf Stream with the muddy waters of the Mississippi. The excitable sing-song of Cantonese was in my ears from the road beneath my balcony; gramaphones around the corner shrieked Chinese music that sounded like a soul in travail; figures in loose black silk pajamas wove back and forth, their queues reaching to their knees. But interspersed with these older Celestials are those of the younger generation in starched white ducks and spotless shirts, heads shorn and crowned with a white helmet or a fine Panama. The Chinese are prosperous in Rabaul, and these young bloods often ride in expensive American motor cars.

At night the shop windows of Chinatown are dark and somewhat sinister, unless the white moonlight throws their wares into wan relief; but by day the narrow windows display, indiscriminately, lovely brocaded silks, jade figurines, carved ivories, brass bowls, cloisonne, fans, together with the worthless trumpery and colored prowders that the kanaka will sell his very soul to have.

In narrow doorways beside these shops squat Chinese, smoking curious pipes. Pretty, young little wives wait upon you from the dimness within—pretty, young little wives brought out of China on the Calulu as if purchased from a mail-order house. Sing Fat had sent back home for a wife, his former one having died in childbirth. But the girl ordered did not arrive. In her place came a deliciously lovely child, scarcely 13 years old. Sing Fat was well on toward 50, but he was not at all displeased with the substitution. Nor, apparently was the girl; for her small heart-shaped face, over her neat, stiff, black collar and Chinese coat, was always smiling and content behind the dim counter. Sing Fat watched her like a cat; there were no queueless, starched young Nationalists in Panama hats loitering about his premises.

PROUD OF SON

Through Chinatown all day long move also white men and women; for Ah Kuhn's store carries the best stock of merchandise in Rabaul—beautiful things from China and useful things from Sydney. Ah Kuhn has made a considerable fortune in his years in Rabaul, and his son has been educated at Oxford. Ah Kuhn loves to show you his son's photograph, and to tell you how the boy is soon to be a lawyer.

Living in the midst of these strange people, I hugged to myself a precious sense of something possessed that I had all but missed. I write this passage from the shelter of a heavy-laden grape arbor overlooking an orchard where fruit is reddening. Far below me lies a rocky Massachusetts coast, from which a blue, blue August sea stretches out beyond the horizon, eventually to a setback leading to sun-drenched coral islands as unaware of this place as the surrounding New Englanders are of Rabaul. There are schooners dotting the sea here, too, but they are spruce, well-painted craft, not happy-go-lucky schooners that pick precariously among green reefs, over enchanted sea-gardens, to anchor in still lagoons where lie pearl-shell and beche-de-mer. Somehow my imagination will not permit me to substitute for the New England fishermen crews with half-naked dark bodies, heads aflame with a dyed halo of wool, ugly faces splotched with betel-red. But the blue sea and the schooners bring back a great wistfulness for that other sea and those other little craft, reeking of copra, that have carried me from atoll to atoll. And yet this is a good place . . . a much better place than New Guinea . . . and beautiful, and I am perverse not to be content with it.

COLORFUL ISLANDS

But Chinatown does not make up the quarter part of this remarkable South Pacific metropolis. Rabaul is cradled in a hollow facing the sea. Everywhere is gay color. The jade and blue of the water fade into a blue horizon. Golden cassias, dropping petals, turn earthly walks into paths of gold. Poincionas blaze along the roadside. Purple bougainvillea climbs everywhere. Eugenias flower in rose glory. Pale champak blossoms drift their petals, loved of pale Indian brides. Great crimson and yellow hibiscus flowers hang heavy heads from tall bushes. Everywhere that gold-and-white treasure of the South Pacific, frangipani, sends sweetness down the ways. Trees spill fountains of white orchids. Yellow fruit clusters about the heads of slender papaw trees. Raintrees drip moisture and lend grateful coolness during the day. Comfortable white bungalows, red-roofed, built on six-foot piles, are hedged in behind shrubbery.

Surely Rabaul was laid out lovingly by the Germans who planned it. Casuarina avenue, very wide and lined with the great trees that give it its name, stretches the length of the metropolis, through Chinatown, and ends at the Botanic Gardens. Along this road passes all of Rabaul, like some exotic pantomine.

I traversed Casuarina avenue several times a day. Of all colorful things in these islands, except the paradise birds and butterflies, the native is the brightest. The male natives of New Britain, and occasionally, the marys, dye their hair. After the first amazement, you become accustomed to heads crowned with a mop of cardinal red, green, saffron, blue or purple wool.

In New Guinea, different from our own workaday world, it is the male creature who is gorgeous, rather than the female. A mary may not wear flowers in her hair—not a virtuous mary—but the man generally has flaming hibiscus flowers behind each ear and in his tight armlets. His teeth are as black as polished ebony, or they are colored crimson with betel-dye. A tall wooden comb, carved and painted, is stuck into his grass, and the latter is further bedecked with wisps of feathers—goura, paradise, osprey, parrot or even common rooster plumage. From babyhood, ear-lobes are trained to hang in long, dangling rims, eventually to the shoulders. The lobe is early pierced and a small ring of wood inserted. As the ear grows, larger and larger disks replace it.

In white communities of the Mandated Territory marys may not wear the native grass skirt, nor go with breasts bare. Calico laplaps are substituted for the beautiful, swaying grass pulpuls, and ugly blouses cover the brown shoulders and breasts. In her bush village a native woman remains a lithe, natural creature; she walks with a swinging movement of her hips that sways her grass pulpul with irresistible grace; and under her brown, satiny skin every muscle of her back is visibly in play.

OLD MOVIES SHOWN

Not at all uncommon along Casuarina avenue is a parade of half a dozen police-boys, in tightly wrapped blue flannel laplaps, white sailor hats atop their wool, bearing a litter. The litter is covered with a piece of tarpaulin, but one motionless brown foot protrudes. It is a "deader," bound for burial in the native cemetery. This is not a serious event in the native philosophy—except, perhaps, for the one on the litter. Life is held very lightly in New Guinea.

Directly opposite Ah Chee's stands a weather-beaten frame building wherein twice a week are displayed ancient American movies. If one or two reels are missing or disabled, the half-caste operator substitutes the equivalent in handy, if irrelevant, film.

The Governor is a small round man. He has a good job, and knows it. It carries with it much more prestige than even a very prosperous business in Queensland. Still, he must sometimes reflect wistfully on the times when he was his own master, when he was not pulled in opposite directions by the missionaries and the political powers down in Canberra. Public functions are singularly Gilbert-and-Sullivanesque (usually held in the European Hotel). Suddenly, in the midst of festivities, the orchestra bursts into a fanfare of "God Save the King" and a round little man in a stiff white mess-jacket and wearing a distinguished gray imperial, mounts the steps followed by a correspondingly round and florid little woman resplendent in strings of Sydney jewelry and sequin-studded gown. His Excellency and his Excellency's wife thus make their resounding splash in the puddle of Melanesia.

Summary

Today she tells of some of her experiences in Rabaul, where on a small island, the roads of the world cross. Later she will tell of her experiences among the savages of New Guinea and the Admiralty Islands, of her strange contacts with curious people in far-away places and of many other instances during the course of her fascinating trek through a savage paradise.

THYROID GLANDS (Science)

Thyroid glands consist of two maroon-colored lobes, one on each side of the windpipe and larynx. The cells of these glands secret thyroxin, containing 60 percent iodine, which is necessary to normal physical and mental growth and activity. The four parathyroid glands are embedded in the thyroid glands. They exert an influence upon the nervous system and metabolism.

ADRENAL OR SUPRARENAL GLANDS

These glands lie above the kidneys and secrete a substance known as adrenin. This stimulates the heart and arteries and affects the amount of sugar in the blood. (Caldwell, Skinner, Tietz; Biological Foundations of Education.) (Science).

MAKING STEEL BY THE CRUCIBLE PROCESS

Wrought iron contains very little carbon, a small fraction of a per cent. By adding carbon in desired quantity, a predetermined quality of steel is obtained. By melting the wrought iron—shown cut in small bars—in a clay or graphite crucible (left) and adding a bag of charcoal, steel of very good quality can be produced. SAMUEL F. B. MORSE'S ELECTROMAGNETIC TELEGRAPH (1832)

The telegraph is based on the same principle as the electric bell. Above, right: The sounder (receiver) consists of electro-magnets A and B, armature C, connected with stop D, which strikes anvil E, giving forth a metallic click when the electromagnets are under current. Stop D, provided with a pencil contacting an unwinding paper-band, will furnish dots and dashes instead of sound. Above, left: The current is closed by depressing key K. Switch S shorts the circuit when K is not in use for receiving messages. Left: The relay. This is an electromagnet connecting local battery B, in the circuit of the sounder, so that instead the incoming weak current of line a-a', the strong current of the local battery will operate the sounder. (Jansky: Magnetism and Electricity).

TELEGRAPH SYSTEM (Science)

Three connected cities representing for example, LaCrosse, Madison and Milwaukee. LaCrosse, calling Milwaukee, opens the switch S, and plays the key K. Both other stations will receive clicks, but Milwaukee alone will answer, since each station has its own call signal. The Morse code expresses the letters of the alphabet by a combination of short and long sounds (dots and dashes). (Jansky: Magnetism and Electricity).

The All-Scenic Route

We're a man who does all our ocean traveling on catalogues. When we fold the catalogue the trip is over.

But we are always fascinated by the lure of the luminous wave, the glow of the tropical cocoanut and the langorous music of the rusty donkey engine.

If you have read Conrad, Jack London, Kyne or this year's furniture catalogue, you must yearn to see the far places of the world and leave your empty bottles there.

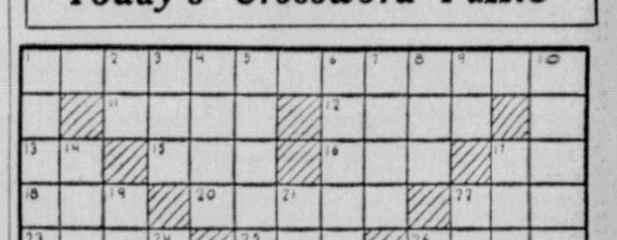
Steamer Drip Pan, U. S. lines: Sailing through Canal Zone to Honolulu, Australia and wading stations. Stop at the Jig Saw Archipelago. Join the native dances. Dine with the fierce cannibals. Leap from branch to branch with the quaint tribal folks of Orsebits and Yurgorila. See them walk barefoot on red hot stones with the traffic lights against them.

Liner Queen of Snorky: Sailing for South African ports with tourists and green bananas. See the Lost Continent, the Dead Sea, extinct civilizations, ruined cities and recover your health laughing at conquered nations. Educational as well as zippy. Club rates if you don't mind strangers.



Royal Moocher: Enjoy a cloudburst in the desert. Up the Nile as far as the crocodiles will let you. Under the Egyptian palms where Cleopatra enslaved Antony. Deferred payments. Live in the past and pay in the future. Do you care what is going on in Madagascar or have you broken your reading glasses? Unlimited stops anywhere. If the captain ever gets this old wreck near land he will be glad to desert with you.

S. S. Lobscobber: New paint job over old rivets. A cruise through ancient Oriental waters. A land that was old before Columbus mailed the pawn tickets back to Isabella. China, Japan and Manchuria. Mongolia, Siam and Guam. Even if you don't go, this list will certainly help your children with their geography lessons.

And that's about as far as we ever get. The children enjoy the pictures. Anyway, we have to see America first. Especially the first 19 states that went wet. We will take the others in our stride if we are still able to strut.

We hope to get to the Grand Canyon, Yellowstone Park, the giant sequoias, the natural bridges and Niagara Falls all this summer. Any one or all will do. It's a relief to look at scenery that a real estate agent cannot buy or sell.

A Warning From France

The economic conference of France with her colonies is inspired by the British imperial conference that was held in Ottawa last summer between England and the latter's dominions.

The French conference aims to do for France and the French colonies what the British conference did for England and her far flung dominions. Its purpose is to consolidate trade within the French empire as an economic union which shall be independent of the world by virtue of its self-contained resources and markets.

The French are known as a logical people. Here is the only logical retort to the Ottawa conference, whose avowed objective was the exclusion of all non-British goods from British markets. If France now determines to ban all non-French goods from French markets, world trade will undergo a further serious contraction.

We wonder what Secretary of State Hull thinks of this latest disregard of his hobby-horse theory that voluntary agreements can be relied on to dissolve all international tariffs. With Secretary Hull it is apparently a THEORY, and not a condition that confronts us. It is certainly only a theory, and not any observable results, which affords explanation of his refusal to do for American trade what all other nations in the world are doing for their trade.

Like the Irish private who complained to his sergeant that he was the only man in the line who was in step, Secretary Hull turns his face resolutely away from the actualities of the Ottawa agreements, and the special conventions for trade reciprocity between England and countries such as Argentina, Denmark, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Finland and even Iceland, which are not within the scope of the agreements.

Will he ignore with the same consistency—or would it be more truthful to say obstinacy—the far-reaching policy upon which France is now embarking to create a great sphere of economic exclusion in the sole interests of France and her dependencies?

In a recent press conference, Secretary Hull observed that some countries are in the control of statesmen who have not learned anything from the depression.

His exasperation with the course which so many countries are pursuing was revealed in his expressed belief that the people in those countries sooner or later would kick and club their leaders into realization of what is actually going on.

May not the fault be with Secretary Hull? Is it clear that he fully realizes the trend of events?

Take for illustration his complete insensibility to the vital importance of Pan-American reciprocity as a major policy for this country to initiate and promote.

Certainly his failure to see that Pan-American reciprocity is the answer and the only one to the Ottawa conference, does not augur a very keen sense of actualities on the part of Secretary Hull.

Despite grievous and unaccountable delay, it may still not be too late to convoke such a conference. The people of the Central and South American countries hailed with enthusiasm the proposal when first made in the Hearst papers. The leading organs of public opinion throughout Latin America have given it their indorsement.

The United States is naturally expected to take the lead in inviting the co-operation of its sister nations in this thrilling mutual undertaking. Its interest in the holding of such a conference and in its success is as great and probably greater than that of any other nation.

Pan-American reciprocity is a noble conception. It is essentially an American policy—and we use the term "American" in its broadest sense—not referring to the United States of America alone, but to every sister commonwealth in North and South America, all co-equals in dignity and sovereignty.

Why should there be any delay in inaugurating and carrying forward the great, beneficent and clearly ordained program of Pan-American reciprocity?

We put this question up to you, Secretary Hull.

800 Subpenas Issued

The Wide Scope of the Federal Inquiry into Local Election Frauds Promises Good Results.

The United States government is plainly in deadly earnest in its proposal to make election cheating unhealthy in Allegheny County.

More than 800 persons are being summoned to testify before the special federal grand jury which is to investigate the cheating in the congressional elections here last November.

With a dragnet of this extent there is every encouragement to expect that the worst of the sharks will be caught.

The Quarter Sessions Court should take care of the fish caught in the government's net that the government does not want.

The Chamber Rebuked

It Is to Be Hoped the Condemnation of Its Anti-Social Policies Will Bring a Change of Heart.

The Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade has passed a resolution condemning the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh for its "anti-social policies."

The Chamber brought this extraordinary rebuke upon itself by boasting that it helped (with the co-operation of Senator James J. Coyne) to kill the old age pension amendment and minimum wage laws.

The condemnation of the Chamber by another local Board of Trade is most significant. It signifies that the Chamber is far from representing the sentiment of the businessmen of Pittsburgh, and cannot honestly say that it speaks for Pittsburgh in everything that it advocates or opposes.

It is to be hoped the officers, directors and members of the Chamber will experience a change of heart and show greater sympathy for the lowly and downtrodden.

Good Times Returning

Let Everybody Who Can Add Momentum to This Encouraging Movement.

Every day of late the Sun-Telegraph has published news of increasing industrial activities, of the receipt of orders, of the stepping up of the rhythm of business, of swelling payrolls.

And now comes the most impressive report of all—the announcement that contracts for $22,000,000 worth of steel for the San Francisco-Oakland Bridge have been placed with the American Bridge Company, one of the more important of our local manufacturing concerns.

Persons who have hitherto been skeptical that the tide had turned are convinced. Good times undoubtedly are now returning.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

What's in a Name?

"What's in a name?" asked Romeo, airily. EVERYTHING—if it's YOUR name. Everything you put into it, everything you are, everything you stand for.

* * *

Take the name Greta Garbo, for instance. A plain, harsh compromising name. Nothing poetic, nothing musical, nothing romantic about it. Yet, when you hear it, you think of beauty, glamour, charm, romance, enchantment. And "Greta Garbo" becomes melodious and alluring.

Or take the name Bill. When everybody calls a man "Bill," you just know that he's a man's man, big-hearted, jolly, generous and lovable. But, if he's called Billie—ah, that's different! It's probably the women who have tagged him that. I've never known a "Billie" who wasn't a heart-breaker and a woman-conqueror. I've never known a "Billie" who didn't have wavy hair and a-way-with-the-women. The Billies are the world's great lovers!

* * *

Yet, when either of these signs a check or a document or a business letter, he signs himself "William." That makes it formal and dignified and impressive. Calling a man "William" to his face is almost a sign that you are afraid of him. Wives call their husbands "William" as a term of reproach—or respect—but never in their tenderer moments.

And there's John. John is a sturdy, upstanding name. You think of "John" as a man who does his duty, pays his bills, keeps his hair cut and loves his own wife. The sort who, in old Puritan days, could shoot an Indian or duck a witch with one hand, while he hung onto his Bible with the other. But "Jack" is a name which always seems to set better on the daredevil, the dashing adventurer, or even the fascinating villain of the play. Jacks are usually picturesque and dangerous.

* * *

You see how it is. A man makes his own name—in a way. But it's different with a woman. She usually lives UP to hers. All the Maries I know are either brilliant or beautiful or both. All the Elaines are good and sweet, and all the Mauds are natural-born vamps. But all the Ruths—well if you want a girl to get into Congress, or into the limelight, just name her "Ruth!" Ruths go places—and do things.

* * *

But it's cruel to give a girl a dignified, forthright name, like "Helen," which can never be affectionately abbreviated, except by leaving off the last syllable. And then, LOOK what it spells!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 19.—Thoughts while strolling: Beer everywhere. But they beef about the wallop. Odd how one of such untheatrical temperament as Winthrop Ames is so infatuated with the theater. Whatever became of jaw-breakers with a caraway seed center?

Herbert Corey, a Toledo, (O.) boy, who made good in the city. And like Will Rogers, has ridden the range. Myra Kingsley suggests a light from a star. Nobody expresses the peppermint quality of Eva Tanguay on the stage today. Wonder if others also hanker for elastic-sided shoes.

One of my favorite people—Percy Hammond. That queer little pucker in Queenie Smith's smile. And the frank, open countenance of a chow. The cauliflowered boys around the entrance to Jack Dempsey's Broadway offices. And what ex-champion has been idolized so long!

Those roccoco furnishings suggesting illicit romance. And what suggests it more than ostrich plumed mules? I wish Christopher Morley would re-discover old Chelsea—sullen brick houses, window cats, cellar estaminets, door scrapers and seedy estafettes who ride pie-bald ponies in front of freight trains.

One word description of Mae West—gristly. To the army of chorus girls he has trained. Ned Weyburn is "High Pockets." Arthur Moss postcards they are dyeing poodles pink in Paree. Fun's fun, but it's tough to make a sissy out of a pooch. There's enough of the human kind.

* * *

Bert Ennis, a scholarly observer, three-sheets attention to need of a purge for radio vulgarity. Since the kick-off, broadcasting had little unseemly ribaldry for the very reason children are potential listeners. Yet lately there has crept in rowdy references to cathartics, tapeworms and the other morning someone spoke of "Louie the Louse."

* * *

And cascades further disillusionment that radio applause is largely inspired. Audiences in studios are directed when to start hand-clapping and at what point to cease by means of cards held aloft by attendants.

For years I have been one of the amateur magicians boring company insufferably on long winter nights with clumsy prestidigitations. As a result I have spent precious hours prowling about magic shops and specialized establishments catering to professionals. Houdini taught me one evanishment he claimed to have originated, and known to no other save his wife. My library on magic is small but comprehensive. The other day a storage warehouse reported the loss of two trunks, lodged there when lauching a bravura in housekeeping. Today I learned they contained my magic paraphernalia—collected over a period of 20 years. Magic has played no part in my life for six years, yet tonight somehow I feel an Ed Wynn without hats.

At old Hammerstein's an Australian magician carried a lion for a disappearance act. After one matinee the runway to its cage fell, and the beast walked through an alley to the street. Pedestrians shinned up trees and lamp posts. The animal ambled amiably to the front of a saloon and hunched directly before the entrance. Everybody cringed, waiting for riflemen. Then in sudden horror they saw a drunk who lurched unconcernedly through the swing doors and, passing the lion reached down, patted its head and staggered on. I have thought the incident a magnificent comedy cliche for a movie short.

* * *

Speaking of loose animals, Central Park and Riverside Drive have become a stalking grounds for dangerous and unleashed police dogs. On two occasions I have seen them tear into smaller and harmless pets and rip them open. Sickening!

* * *

* * *

Eddie Fink, long familiar to patrons of rejuvenated Luchow's as baton wielder, was surrounded by a group of Nazi sympathizers protesting against his appearance at a place controlled by German Jews. "Don't be ridic!" he gagged. "I work at a Chinese place, Lu Chow's!"—and tripped blithely on.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Maybe I'll pull out of it. Maybe I won't. Just at the moment (you know how one gets) I'm hoping I won't. But don't bet any money on it! You can't kill my breed with anything short of a pile driver. So—save the flowers!

All of which is leading up to this. Here I lie, not caring "whether school keeps or not."

YET ALL THE WHILE, I KNOW THAT SCHOOL MUST KEEP—AND THAT I'LL DO MY DARNDEST TO HELP IT KEEP!

Queer thing for a sick human to feel like that! Get sick enough, and the human side of you almost vanishes. You're not much better than a mired animal—with all of a mired animal's stupid misery and terror filling your bewildered mind, and an animal's selfishness, too! You should worry about the rest of the world. You're SICK! The rest of the world can go hang! That's what a mired animal would say.

And yet, I've still to meet the first sick human that said that—and I've seen them by the thousands. No! Every time, no matter how sick they were, every one of them was fighting to make a come back—FOR SOMEBODY ELSE'S SAKE.

Most times it's a mother or father, with every personal desire for life pounded out of them by pain—BUT THEY'RE FIGHTING TO COME BACK FOR THEIR CHILDREN.

Many a time it's a lonely man or woman, without chick or child—BUT THEY'VE A JOB. SOMEBODY'S DEPENDING ON THEM TO CARRY THAT JOB.

And so they brace themselves against pain, and batter themselves against their own discouragement and indifference — and back they come!

Perhaps, if you're well, that fact won't mean much to you. But it's a swell boost if you're sick. It will do something for you that no tonic ever can.

For there's the difference between a brute and a man. A brute takes the count. A MAN DOESN'T!

Almost, lying sick, you can feel it—that Spirit Thing that is in you, but not of you.

When you're happy and healthy, it escapes you. You don't notice. You're all of a piece.

But when you're sick—mighty sick—there it is, like a Presence—AND HELL ITSELF CAN'T LICK IT!

God knows I'm no Pollyanna, looking for the silver lining to a bemoanin' cloud. Yet, lying here, I think I almost see a use for sickness.

Perhaps it's our one chance on earth to meet Ourselves—and know the stuff of which we're made.

Perhaps, at times like this, the veil wears thin, and we can see, if we will, the Thing in us that makes it all worth while.

At any rate, even though I feel like the very Inferno there's something pretty swell about all this. Not that I'm any hero—but at least I can see how heroes get that way.

And Christ. Those nails! I cried at such a little pain last night. But He hung on for hours—and prayed, "Forgive them, Father, for they know not what they do!"

Well, maybe, as I said before, this won't mean much to you if you're feeling fit. But for you, and you, and you, who are doing a rap like me—there's this:

We're down, partner—BUT WE'RE NOT OUT—NOT BY A LONG SHOT! AND WE NEVER WILL BE!

Text for Today For the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him.—II. Chronicles, xvi:9.

Hard to Believe

"SANDAL" SHOES, BARE TOES, TOE NAILS NEATLY VARNISHED, SHOWING

This picture is not imaginary, gentle reader. It was published by London Sketch and shows the feet of a young lady ready for the evening, a dinner, a dance or "what not."

The feet and legs are bare, no stockings, only "sandals." Unlike the common sense footwear of ancient Greeks, these have terrifically high heels. The toes are held ingeniously, as you see, with an arrangement that makes them visible; each of the toes is powdered and dusted off to suit, legs also.

Toe nails are highly polished, colored and varnished, to shine like jewels. A fashion authority says your toe nails may be "worn" bright pink, gold or silver, according to taste.

Many American girls have already adopted the "toe nail showing" style of shoe. It seems a silly fashion, but may do good in the end. Wearing your toes visible will make it necessary to take care of your feet and refrain from squeezing them in tight shoes.

Toes, no matter how beautifully painted, varnished or gilded, would not look pleasant if they were all squeezed together, one above the other, as they used to be in the days of tight, pointed shoes.

But if you ask us "WHICH direction," we give up.

NO. FIVES

By Winifred Black

5B—that's the average size for the average American girl.

Heavens—what's happening to us sisters?

Your grandmother and my mother would have died rather than to have confessed to anything bigger than a 4B—and there were plenty of girls in this little old U. S. A. only a few years ago—girls who wore 5A—and thought nothing of it. I know a woman who has made fun of her daughters for years because they wear 3's.

Daughters are called the three Cinderellas—because they have such little feet, but mamma thinks they are regular clod-hoppers when it comes to shoes.

Mamma wears No. 1's, and you should see the little ankles and the high arch of mamma's foot! She has a pair of yellow satin slippers in her queer old trunk way down in the basement trunk room.

They were snow white when they were new—those slippers—and mamma wore them at her wedding.

She was married in a log church up in the deep forests of a pioneer state and she wore a white dotted muslin, her hair tied up in a blue velvet snood—and the No. 1's.

The bridegroom sent to New York to get them for her. To New York mind you—half way across the continent they came—by canal, by stage coach, on horseback—just in time for the wedding.

Everybody said the bridegroom was a little off—as they put it in those frank, outspoken days, for no one in that community had ever seen a pair of white satin slippers before.

And the daughters, who are good, sizeable women to be sure, wear three's, and their growing daughters wear five's and what of it?

Athletics do it, they say. Tennis and hiking and golf and all the rest of it.

Pardon my rudeness, but may I retire to the corner and whisper, "Fudge, fiddlesticks and other mysterious words?"

Mamma, who wore the No. 1's, walked three miles and a half and back to school every day of her life except Sunday. And when the carry-all was crowded with visitors she and little brother walked four miles to Sunday School and part of the four mile they ran.

And the little girl in the gingham apron with ruffles on it and the gingham sunbonnet had a little garden of her own which she tended, day in and day out. She had chickens of her own to feed and she skimmed the cream from her own special pans of milk in the spring house, and Saturday she churned and Saturday afternoons she baked or helped to bake—talk about exercise—and she did it all on her little No. 1's.

No use talking—girls—you are growing up ahead of us in a hundred different ways and your feet are growing with you.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

Shall wives, experienced in some line of work in which they might earn a good income, remain at home and do house work?

Serious conditions arise when a husband's salary is not sufficient to meet the demands of a wife who is not willing to economize in her personal wants.

If she has been a good earner before marriage, in a line of work that she enjoyed, she cannot see why she should do house work that she dislikes and be without a regular income.

She feels that she can afford to pay a woman out of her own salary to work about the home and still have money to spend for things she wants.

Young folk should have a thorough understanding of this matter before marriage, and have made an agreement and stand by it uncomplainingly.
